Say Laird is Opposed to a Compromise on Safeguard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was reported today to be firmly opposed to any compromise of the Nixon administration's Safeguard program despite the apparent deadlock shaping up in the Senate.

Defense officials said today Laird wished to re-emphasize his "unqualified support for the Safeguard proposal as submitted by the President to the Congress." That proposal involves building ABM sites to protect two squadrons of Air Force Minuteman missiles in the U.S. Northwest.

The Senate instead appears to be moving toward a compromise which would bar deployment of missiles but step up testing of radar and computer components, probably at two Pacific test sites.

At the Pentagon Thursday, Deputy Secretary of Defense David R. Packard would not rule out the possibility of a compromise but said it's a question "which will have to be dealt with by the President."

But White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler again predicting the administration will win its fight, declined to discuss the possibility of a compromise.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen also took a no-compromise position today as the Senate continued its ABM debate.

Defense spokesman Jerry Friedheim, asked whether Laird opposes a compromise, replied, "That is correct."

Friedheim said Laird feels limiting the Safeguard program to research and development would delay actual deployment of defensive weapons by two years, from 1974 to 1976.

Laird, Friedheim said, believes such a delay would be "unacceptable in the face of the threat he sees in the 1974 period."

The defense chief has pointed to the Soviet Union's deployment of multimegaton SS9 missiles as evidence it is seeking a first-strike capability against the United States.

The Pentagon's position is that if the Soviet Union produced 400 SS9s and equipped them with triple warheads, they could knock out as much as 95 per cent of the 1,000-missile Minuteman force in the United States with a sudden attack in the mid-1970s.

Sen. George D. Aiken, the Vermont Republican who nudged the Senate closer to compromise Thursday by stating Safeguard could not be approved without modifications, predicted a program could be worked out acceptable to both a substantial majority of senators and the Nixon administration.

"I don't think the White House is so narrow-minded as to object to a workable modification of the bill," Aiken told a reporter. He said he has been in touch with the White House often in recent weeks.

Negotiations behind the scenes are expected during the next few days, with any showdown votes at least two weeks off.

At the moment, the possible compromises before the Senate as amendments would:

—Limit the Safeguard program to research, barring any deployment or site acquisition. Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., introduced the proposal.

—Provide for installing computer and radar elements at initial Safeguard sites in North Dakota and Montana for research and testing, but bar deployment of the missiles themselves. Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., introduced this amendment.

Proponents of each compromise find the other proposal unacceptable.

But Aiken and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana indicated during debate Thursday there is an area of compromise between the two amendments since both proposed continued antiballistic missile—ABM—research.

"I would think as a suggestion perhaps it would be possible to achieve the same results if we had testing going on at such missile sites as Kwajelein and Eniwietok," Mansfield told the Senate.

Asked later if use of the two Pacific test areas might be the modification he has been looking for, Aiken said "It's certainly possible.

In announcing his insistence there be a compromise, Aiken became the 50th senator to declare himself opposed to the administration's ABM program as it stands. There are 48 who have said they will support it and two who remain undeclared.

Sen. Winston L. Prouty, Aiken's Vermont Republican colleague, told a reporter he expects to decide his position by next week. The other uncommitted senator, John J. Williams, R-Delaware, has said he will not state his position publicly.

Aiken said in his speech that "even though the legislation as written could be approved by as many as 51 or 52 votes in his Senate, which I doubt, we would be in an extremely weak bargaining position" in forthcoming arms talks with the Soviet Union.

"I believe it is absolutely necessary for President Nixon to have a much larger number of votes of this Senate supporting him when we enter into such a conference," he added.

Navy Keeps an Eye On Soviet Warships

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— Additional U.S. reconnaissance planes have joined the surveillance of a Soviet task force moving slowly and boldly toward Cuba in an unprecedented show of the Soviet flag.

A Navy spokesman said today aircraft from the attack carrier Independence moved into the shadowing operation that already included the U.S. radar picket ship Thomas J. Gary and planes from bases in Maryland and Maine.

The spokesman said the eight Soviet ships were about 260 miles southeast of Jacksonville at midmorning, moving in a southwesterly direction.

This position would be less than 600 miles from Cuba where the task force is expected July 20.

The USS Independence was about 80 miles from Jacksonville on a previously scheduled training mission. Its aircraft include Vigilante jet reconnaissance planes with two crewmen each and radar-domed Hawkeyes, propeller-driven planes carrying five-man crews.

The Soviets have made it clear their intention is to send the Russian warships on their first visit to Premier Fidel Castro's Cuba. The force is expected to stay through the July 26 revolutionary celebration in Cuba or Soviet naval day which falls on July 27.

The maneuver is viewed by some U.S. military sources as possibly a response to the yearly visits by U.S. destroyers to the Black Sea near Soviet territory. And it provides an opportunity for the Soviet navy to practice keeping submarines in operation for extended periods away from shore-based support.

The task force is comprised of a 5,600-ton guided missile cruiser of the "Kynda" class; a 3,500-ton destroyer that can carry anti-ship missiles; a 4,450-ton destroyer that can be armed with anti-air missiles; two conventional submarines; a sub tender, and two oilers.

Physical OK For Apollo

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Doctors today pronounced the Apollo 11 astronauts physically fit to fly their moon-landing mission next week.

Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins underwent an extensive four-hour examination as the countdown proceeded smoothly toward a Wednesday launching.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, reported: "Neil, Mike and Buzz appear in good spirits. Their physical state looks good ... The Apollo 11 crew is ready nor flight."

During the morning, the astronauts received the telephoned good wishes of Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, who was touring Cape Kennedy.

The physical exam also gathered baseline heart rate, respiration and other data for in-flight and post-flight comparison.

For the past month, doctors have been drawing complete medical profiles of the three spacemen, who are to start their voyage to the moon at 9:32 a.m. EDT next Wednesday. Previous major physicals were completed June 16 and July 1.

The information will be particularly important when Armstrong and Aldrin walk on the lunar surface July 21. It will provide clues to when the astronauts might be tiring in the unfamiliar one-sixth gravity field on the moon.

While the astronauts are on the surface, doctors in the mission control center will monitor heart rate, oxygen consumption and the temperature of the suit-cooling water as it enters and leaves the system. The latter will be an indirect measurement of the amount of heat produced by the body.

The lengthy countdown for the launching of the mammoth rocket started on schedule at 8 p.m. Thursday after two technicians climbed into a first stage fuel tank to find and stop a leak in the helium pressurization system.

They corrected the problem by tightening a nut at the base of a helium storage bottle. The helium is used to pressurize the fuel tank and operate certain valves.

Launch director Rocco Petrone said the most critical portion of the count will occur about midnight Monday when several key items take place in quick succession.

Senate Support Sought For Voting Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, urging adoption of a nationwide voting rights law, said today's Congress should not "permit the Negro citizens outside of the South to be forgotten."

Testifying before a Senate judiciary subcommittee on constitutional rights, he rejected contentions that the Nixon administration proposal was "merely a delaying tactic to tie up any attempt to extend the 1965 voting rights act."

The administration proposal would apply nationwide significant provisions of the 1965 act, which was limited to six southern states and part of a seventh.

"We do not want to see the act lapse in August 1970," Mitchell said. "We favor its extensions both in time and in its geographical coverage."

Mitchell appealed for support of the administration bill the day after a House judiciary subcommittee ignored it and instead overwhelmingly approved

Conviction Of Spock Reversed

BOSTON (AP) — The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed today the convictions of Dr. Benjamin Spock and three other men found guilty last year of conspiring to counsel young men to avoid the draft.

The court freed Spock and one of the other three—Harvard graduate student Michael Ferber—from further prosecution.

But it ordered retrials for the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., chaplain at Yale University, and Mitchell Goodman, an author and teacher from Temple, Maine.

The four were among five tried before a U.S. District Court jury here. The fifth defendant, Marcus Raskin of Washington, was acquitted.

The appeals court held that the conviction of Spock and the three others was not consistent with the 1st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees free speech.

The court agreed with the defendants' contention that "vigorous criticism of the draft and of the Vietnam war is free speech protected by the 1st Amendment, even though its effect is to interfere with the war effort."

The court ordered the retrials of Goodman and Coffin on legal technicalities. It found errors in the trial judge's submission of the charge to the jury.

The court's decision was a majority opinion. A dissenting opinion filed by one of the judges on the three-man tribunal urged that all four defendants be freed.

Spock and the others could not immediately be reached for comment.

Spock and the others could not immediately be reached for comment.

Spock, Coffin, Goodman and Ferber were given two-year prison sentences.

Spock, Coffin and Goodman also were fined $5,000 apiece, and Ferber was fined $1,000.

Spock and the others were indicted on the basis of an anti-draft rally held on the steps of Boston's Arlington Street Church in 1967.

The appeals court held that individuals are entitled to express condemnation of the draft

New Bond Subsidy Plan Is Urged by Committe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has decided tentatively that federal subsidies should be offered to encourage state and municipal governments to finance improvements with bonds which carry taxable interest.

But the plan would allow the states and municipalities the option of using their traditional method of low-interest, tax-free bonds if they so desired.

In a move destined to draw opposition from investment bankers, public power associations, and state and local government officials, the committee opened the door for the first time to federal taxation of interest on the development bonds.

Chairman Wilbur Mills was expected to make the committee's action official today in announcing progress made toward a tax reform package which he hopes to deliver to the House by Aug. 13.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., is sponsor of the bond subsidy plan to compensate the states and municipalities with a subsidy for paying higher interest rates which would be required for bonds with taxable interest.

Ullman, in announcing the committee's action Thursday, said he thinks there's something in it for everyone: the federal government will begin to close a gaping tax loophole; the development bonds will be more attractive and easier to sell to the bulk of investors; and state and local governments can make their own choice.

Beyond the opposition of government bodies who are reluctant to alter their present policies for bonds, the committee is facing the constitutional question of whether it is legal for the federal government to levy a tax on the interest of bonds issued by the lower levels of government.

Note Rise In Cattle Incidents

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Friday that Quintin Bender, Green Ridge, had reported two registered Angus cattle valued at $300 each as missing and that L. M. Decker, 132 South Gentry, had reported one Black Angus cow valued at $250 missing from his farm nine miles southwest of Sedalia.

"This makes a total of 15 cattle listed as strayed or stolen since June," Fairfax said. "We had no reports this year prior to June of missing cattle," he added.

Earlier this month John Curry, Hughesville, reported a Black Angus bull missing and in June, John Cole, Route 4, reported nine shorthorn steers and two shorthorn heifers as missing.

"There is no evidence as to whether these cattle were rustled or simply strayed from the farms," Fairfax said.

However, cattle rustling is on the increase in Missouri, according to the Missouri Cattlemen's Association.

"The Missouri Cattlemen's Association is taking steps to head off this rise in rural grand larceny," said Alan King, association vice-president from Dadeville. Cattle stealing has cost cattlemen thousands of dollars this past year, King said, and reports continue to pour into the Cattlemen's Association office in Jefferson City.

Recently the association launched a state-wide reward program. The program provides for up to $1,000 reward to persons supplying information which results in the apprehension and conviction of thieves stealing members' cattle.

"Recent increases in cattle values makes cattle stealing more attractive," King said. "The reward program should

Housing Panel Is Optimistic Over Program

Sedalia Housing Authority members emerged from a meeting Thursday night "more optimistic" on the prospects of getting a public housing program underway in Sedalia.

This was the evaluation of E. Glenn Lewis, authority chairman, who said George D. Karseboom of the Department of Housing and Urban Development office in Fort Worth, Tex., explained some provisions of federal law "that make it (construction) more feasible" for developers, Lewis said.

The meeting was closed to the press at Karseboom's suggestion, but Lewis summarized the gist of the session.

Lewis added that as a result of the meeting, one local developer will "take a new look" at the program.

Nixon Asserts Proposal From Thieu 'Opens Way'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today new peace proposals by President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam "should open the way at last for a rapid settlement" of the Vietnam war—if the Communists will begin serious negotiations.

In a lengthy statement hailing Thieu's suggestions for a political approach to a settlement, Nixon said:

"If the other side genuinely wants peace, it now has a comprehensive set of offers which permit a fair and reasonable settlement. If it approaches us in this spirit, it will find us reasonable. Hanoi has nothing to gain by waiting."

Nixon noted that at his June 8 Midway Island meeting with Thieu, the two presidents "declared our readiness to accept any political outcome which is arrived at through free elections."

President Thieu proposed free elections to settle the war, saying the Viet Cong can participate if they pledge to renounce violence and abide by the results of the ballotting.

Thieu called for international supervision to insure conditions fair to all.

President Thieu

Observers in Saigon said Thieu's proposal was unlikely to end the stalemate at the Paris peace talks since Hanoi and the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government insist the United States must withdraw all its troops and the Thieu regime must step down as the first steps to end the war.

The President described Thieu's proposals as marking "the culmination of a long series of steps by the South Vietnamese and American governments all of which together demonstrate clearly the sincere desire of our two governments to negotiate an honorable and rapid settlement of the war."

In saying he and Thieu have declared themselves ready to accept any outcome arrived at through free elections Nixon underlined the word "any".

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said there had been general consultation between Saigon and Washington during the preparation of Thieu's speech inviting the Communists to participate in free elections to be supervised by an international body.

Ziegler said the White House had a full text of Thieu's remarks before they were delivered. He likened the consultation to that which preceded the May 14 television-radio address putting forward an eight-point peace plan.

The presidential spokesman, responding to questions, left open the possibility that a review of further withdrawals of

Ensemble Singers

One of four ensembles representing Bob Jones University on tours throughout the country this summer will present a program of sacred music at FAITH BAPTIST CHURCH 2331 S. Ingram, Sedalia on Friday, July 18 at 7:30 p.m. The vocal ensemble will sing special arrangements of familiar hymns and sacred classics. Members of the ensemble are standing left to right, Miss Sheryl McCauley, soprano; Steve Thomas, baritone; Todd Gillespie, tenor; and Miss Lorna Walker, alto and pianist. Seated are Dick and Carol Hester, alto. Dick is in charge of the group. He is a graduate student pursuing the master of divinity degree in the School of Religion. Miss McCauley is a junior majoring in elementary education. Miss Walker and Mr. Thomas also are juniors and are music education majors. A sophomore, Mr. Gillespie is majoring in Bible. The group of six — who come from Florida, Michigan, Illinois, Texas, and South Carolina — are typical of the students of Bob Jones University, which is located in Greenville, S.C. This nondenominational, Christian institution draws its student body of nearly 4,000 from every state in the Union and about 25 foreign countries.

Church Group Hears Speaker

SMITHTON — The Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church met July 3 in the Fellowship Hall with president, Mrs. William Green presiding. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Miss Laura Kruse, acting secretary for Mrs. C. J. Hiltenburg. Following the treasury report by Mrs. Charles Verts, it was announced that the Community 4-H Fair would be held at the Smithton School Building, July 12.

The Dorcas Circle, chairmen, Mrs. Margaret Smith and Mrs. Leonard Semkin, was hostess for the noon meal. Table decorations were in keeping with the Fourth of July holiday.

Miss Mary Hulbut, Sedalia, was guest speaker. A retired missionary, she has spent 38 years as a teacher in Angola, Africa. Miss Hulbut sang several songs in the native language and showed an unusual musical instrument, similar to the Jews-Harp, which is played by hand. According to Miss Hulbut, "perhaps the greatest need in Africa is Christianity. This is the challenge of the Church today."

Program Speaker

The Rev. A. E. Williams, pastor of the Bethany Baptist Church will be the speaker on the KDRO, 8:45 a.m. Morning Devotional program for the week of July 14-18. The program is sponsored by the Sedalia-Pettis county Ministers Association.

Sedalia Area Crusade To Be Held July 14-20

Dr. Ralph Langley

Rev. Fred Doerge

The Greater Sedalia Area Crusade will be July 14-20. This meeting is sponsored by the Harmony Baptist Association composed of 27 churches in Pettis County and surrounding areas. The Crusade will be held at the State Fairgrounds, Agriculture Building at 7:45 p.m. each evening including Sunday, July 20.

The Evangelist for this Crusade will be Dr. Ralph Langley. He is a native of Opelika, Ala. Dr. Langley is a graduate of Baylor University and of the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, where he received a Dr. of Theology Degree in 1957.

His pastorates have included University Baptist Church, Coral Gables, Fla. This church grew from 485 to over 1900 in four years. He pastored the Wilshire Baptist Church in Dallas, Tex., for 2½ years. The Sunday School enrollment of this church grew from 525 to 1250.

Since February, 1958, Dr. Langley has been pastor of the Willow Meadows Baptist Church, Houston, Tex. This church has grown from 265 to over 2900 members.

Dr. Langley is a Kiwanian and a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He is first Vice President of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. He has traveled abroad in a number of countries. He is the co-author of a book "Youth Speaks."

In June of 1965 he was invited to the White House by President Kennedy for conference on civil rights. Dr. Langley will be preaching each evening of the crusade.

The Song Leader for the Greater Area-wide Crusade will be Fred Doerge of Webb City, Mo. He has attended Southwest Baptist College, Bolivar, and the Oklahoma Baptist University of Shawnee, Okla. While in high school in Joplin, he was a member of the high school state Basketball team in 1955. He also won state honors in football at the end position in 1956 and he won All-American high school honors in football at the tackle position in 1956.

He has pastored several churches in Missouri and Kansas, the last church being the Little Blue Baptist Church in Kansas City. He has been evangelist, pianist, and soloist for the Kingsmen Quartet of Dallas Tex. Since 1965 he has been in full time evangelism as evangelist and song leader.

He will be leading the Crusade Choir and the Congregational singing at the Crusade Meeting.

Jehovah's Witnesses' Pastors Maintain Other Occupations

KANSAS CITY — It has been said, "The vocation of every man and woman is to serve other people." Jehovah's Witnesses go along with that, but they believe it must go further to include service to God. That is why every Witness looks upon his preaching and teaching in God's service as his real vocation, and his secular job, whatever it may be, as his avocation.

Jehovah's Witnesses comprise a recognized society of ordained ministers whose sole purpose is to preach the good news of God's Kingdom, and as such, they are unsalaried. Therefore, they must follow secondary occupation to provide for themselves and their families.

Critics have claimed that the performance of secular work by the Witnesses denies them the right of their status as ministers, but the Witnesses have successfully argued against this claim throughout the world. The courts hold that the only requirement for one to claim he is a minister is that he teach and preach regularly and customarily. This Jehovah's Witnesses willingly do.

Last year, some 1,200,000 Witnesses reported ministerial activity in 200 lands. Of these, only 65,800 were occupied full-time in the preaching and teaching work. The vast majority of them follow secular occupations of every conceivable description, either full-time or part-time, devoting evenings and weekends to the ministry. About ten hours per month is spent in the preaching work by the average Witness. This is in addition to five hours of congregational meetings each week.

A cross section of Witnesses who must do secular work to maintain themselves and their families is found in the Sedalia, Warrensburg, Clinton, Boonville areas.

Take Harold G. Matson, Route 1, Box 50, Sedalia, Mo., for example. "I serve as Presiding Minister for the Sedalia Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses," Matson explained, "which means that I am charged with the spiritual oversight of all associated Witnesses in Sedalia. That in itself takes much of my time."

Matson's leadership requires him to set the example in house-to-house ministry and to aid others in the congregation. He also plans his congregation's five weekly meetings and provides private and group counsel whenever this proves to be necessary. He is retired from his secular work.

Said Matson, "Though I was baptized as one of Jehovah's Witnesses in 1942 and am now past 60, I don't feel the desire of retiring from the ministry. We have many fine examples in the Bible of those who kept right on despite their age; the apostle Paul was one who referred to himself as 'Paul the aged,' and yet continued to preach and teach."

Another presiding minister in the area is Ira S. Snyder, who lives with his wife, Naomi, and their three children on Route 4, Clinton, Mo. His responsibilities require oversight of the Clinton Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses. To support himself and his family he works away from home five days a week as a house painter. He finds time to prepare for the five congregational meetings a week, besides engaging in the ministry service, including door-to-door service and visiting others of Jehovah's Witnesses in their homes.

David Pfister, who lives in Warrensburg, Mo., and is Presiding Minister of Jehovah's Witnesses in that city, feels that any minister should be able to preach and teach the Word of God and still find time to support his family with income other than from congregational members being "dunned" to support an expensively operated church and a full-time minister. He works five days a week as a painting contractor. Though active in the ministry each week with local representatives of Jehovah's Witnesses, Pfister feels that by working for his family's daily bread as did the apostle Peter on many occasions, the minister in charge of congregational activity would not be such an expensive burden on the members of the congregation.

And yet another area minister, Joseph Makita, residing in Boonville, and also Presiding Minister of the Boonville Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, believes that "The vocation of every man and woman is to serve other people." In addition to his ministry activity, preparing for five one-hour-long Bible study classes at the local Kingdom Hall each week, he engages regularly in the door-to-door ministry with the Boonville Witnesses. His wife regularly accompanies him in all phases of the ministry and spends upwards of one hundred hours a month in the door-to-door ministery service. Says Makita, "While my vocation is the Christian ministry, my avocation is that I work at least five days a week as an automobile mechanic. If Paul, the apostle, worked at making tents according to the book of Acts as found in the Bible, then we all feel that a true Christian minister today could still preach and teach the Bible besides providing material things for his household himself."

When Jehovah's Witnesses convene for their eight-day "Peace On Earth" International Assembly at the Kansas City Municipal Stadium, July 18-25, in evidence will be entire families. The family heads present will represent all the trades found in the states of Kansas and Missouri, such as farmers, school teachers, factory workers, salesmen, housewives, barbers and electricians, to name a few. Teenage children and babes-in-arms will be seen with their parents all through the assembly. The more than 56,000 delegates to the convention will learn more fully, "The vocation of every man and woman is to serve other people."

Voight Is On His Way Now

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, I'm hot right now," says Jon Voight realistically. "I can swing in almost any direction, make almost any kind of deal. But the 'bread' is not what I'm after."

The bread—money—will be coming his way, whether he's after it or not. For Jon Voight is this year's Dustin Hoffman, who happens to be his close friend and co-star in "Midnight Cowboy."

What "The Graduate" did for Hoffman, "Midnight Cowboy" is doing for blond, husky Voight. It is not a pleasant film, depicting the survival attempts of an unbright, self-styled stud from Texas in New York City. That's Voight. Hoffman, in a stunning change of pace from "The Graduate," plays his mangy, crippled buddy.

Voight is here for the finishing scenes of "Catch 22."

Like all "overnight sensations," Voight put in a long and hard apprenticeship. The beginning was at Archbishop Stepinac High School in White Plains, N.Y., where he played an 80-year-old in a comedy. Then came training at Catholic University and the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York.

"In those early New York days I was a madman," he reflected. "I wanted to be a big, big star but I was a complete fool about acting. I had a lot of talent, but I wasn't an artist. I couldn't hone my talent to a fine edge; I was only as good as the director I was working with.

"Fortunately I had a lot of friends who helped me. I've always been gregarious. With their help I stuck it out until I began to develop technique. It wasn't easy, and there were long times when it was tough to make a living. But I hated to take another job, and I never did. I could always send home for money; my parents were great about that."

Voight began hitting it in 1964 when he attracted attention off-Broadway in "A View from the Bridge." He won an award on Broadway in "That Summer, That Fall," toured in "Camelot" with Howard Keel, played Romeo with the Globe Theater in San Diego. But he credits television with providing his biggest boost.

"They talk about today's actors missing the training ground of the repertory theater; I found my own repertory in television series," said the actor. "I did seven shows, from 'Cimarron Strip' to 'Gunsmoke,' and that's how I served my apprenticeship."

Lutherans To Sponsor Convention in Denver

ST. LOUIS — The Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod will hold its national convention at Currigan Exhibition Hall, Denver, Colo. July 11-18.

About 1000 voting pastoral delegates and voting lay delegates, 350 advisory delegates, and guests from other American and overseas church bodies are expected to attend the convention.

The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod is the second largest of America's Lutheran Church bodies. It is divided into 37 districts, the local one of which is the Missouri District of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod.

Delegates from this area planning to attend the convention are: Rev. F. A. Woltmann, Bunceton; Rev. Oscar Hellwege, Marshall; Rev. Adolph Meyer, Warrensburg; Edwin H. Schelp, Emma; Clarence Stroebel, California; Rev. James W. Kalthoff, 1814 W. 11th; Carl Denker, Cole Camp; Virgil Leckband, Concordia; and Rev. Ross Haupt, Sweet Springs.

Among the issues to be discussed at the convention are woman suffrage in the church body and recognition of black power purposes.

Churches To Hold Area Clothing Drive

A county-wide drive for the Church World Service Clothing Appeal will be held in Sedalia on Monday July 14.

Collection depot is Calvary Episcopal Church, Broadway and Ohio.

Contributed clothing should be clean and have at least six months wear. Church World Service, the cooperative relief agency of thirty denominations, distributes the contributed clothing in some thirty overseas areas of need.

Chairman of the Pettis-County Clothing Committee is Mrs. Arthur J. Morgan. Further information can be secured by telephoning Mrs. Morgan at 826-4875 or 827-0821.

Bring your clothing to Calvary Episcopal Church between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday.

Vote Registration Required by Judge

MIAMI (AP) — Metropolitan Court Judge Tom Lee told Brian Southard that three traffic charges against him would be dropped if the 21-year-old man registered to vote.

Judge Lee listened as an elections clerk asked Southard his party affiliation and the youth replied, "Republican."

"And after I went to all that trouble," said the judge, who described himself as a "wretched Democrat."

Middies to Arrive At Pearl Harbor

PEARL HARBOR (AP) — Fourteen destroyers manned by Navy midshipmen from across the nation will arrive Saturday.

More than 400 midshipmen from the U.S. Naval Academy and other colleges and universities are taking part in the training voyage, called Destroyer Flotilla Seven.

They will remain in Hawaii five days.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Fair

"The Big One!"

That's what the Missouri State Fair is going to be in Sedalia beginning Aug. 16, according to John Owen, special events director, speaking before the Sedalia Kiwanis club meeting in Bothwell Hotel Thursday noon.

Club members agreed that Owen's prediction would be valid after hearing him give a complete rundown of all the scheduled exhibits of farm and industry, horse shows, horse races, grandstand entertainment, and show biz big names who will appear here.

The gate admission will be $1 to cover practically all of these events. There will be a charge for the racing car events.

Subsequent publicity here and all over Missouri will describe in detail all elements of the upcoming "Big One" at the Missouri State Fair.

The speaker was introduced by Herbert Taylor, president-elect, who presided in the absence of President Roy Brown.

Invocation was by Senator John Ryan. Singing was led by Wendell Smith with Mrs. Lillian Maynard accompanist. Birthday greetings were extended to Sylvan Woolery.

Introduced was a new Kiwanian, Ronald Jones. He transferred from the Prosser, Wash., club of which he was president when the club was chartered in April.

Senate

a five-year extension of the present law.

The full House committee is expected to take similar action next week, but only a minority of the Senate subcommittee apparently favors the extension.

Mitchell said that a simple extension of the 1965 act "leaves the undereducated ghetto Negro as today's forgotten man in voting rights legislation."

The administration bill would prohibit literacy tests in all 50 states and Mitchell maintained that this would assist in removing barriers to Negro voting in areas outside the South.

A House Judiciary subcommittee approved Thursday, by what Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., called an overwhelming voice vote, a bill to extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act for five years beyond Aug. 6, 1970.

The administration's proposal for a new law was not even put up for a vote. The full House Judiciary Committee is expected to approve the extension bill next week.

But in the Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., backers of an extension of the present law concede their chances are dim. They figure they can count on the votes of only three of the eight members.

Already there is talk of trying to bypass the Judiciary Committee and bring the House bill directly before the Senate—strategy that has been used in the past to enact civil rights legislation.

The administration bill, like the 1965 act, would ban the use of voter literacy tests and authorize use of federal registrars, but it would apply to all 50 states instead of just six southern states and part of a seventh.

It also would prohibit the states from imposing residency requirements for voting in presidential elections.

One of the most controversial parts of the administration bill would eliminate a requirement in the 1965 act that the southern states get prior approval of any election law changes. Under the proposed new law, the attorney general would be authorized to bring court action to block a change he found discriminatory.

Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the Senate subcommittee Thursday that the administration bill could open up a whole new battlefront and prevent extension of the 1965 act.

"That's why the administration's action can be diversionary, disruptive and destructive," he said at a lengthy hearing at which he clashed with Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Thurmond, like Ervin and other southern senators who waged a losing fight against passage of the 1965 act, contended that if there is to be any federal voting rights law, it should apply to all states.

But the NAACP official said it is "fraudulent on the part of the administration to pretend there is something wrong in New York or Indiana that makes it necessary" to apply the law to the whole country.

interest persons to observe and report unusual activities around members farms and pastures," he added.

To help combat this rural crime wave the association offers this advice to cattle owners: Brand cattle for easy identification; lock gates to pastures, lots and loading facilities; and encourage neighbors to be watchful for unusual activities.

To assist the state cattle industry the Missouri Cattlemen's Association and other farm organizations have sought legislation which would set up state-wide brand registry agency. It would expedite the location and identification of stolen animals. The bill did not pass during the last legislative session but the association hopes it will in the next General Assembly.

"The best solution to this theft problem," King said, "is prevention. Cattlemen need to organize in a united effort to discourage cattle thieves and reduce their activities."

U.S. combat troops from South Vietnam, promised for late August, might be accelerated should the current lull in ground fighting continue.

However, he said that while the level of fighting was being watched and assessed carefully, it was too early to determine whether it represented a meaningful "signal" from the other side.

Nixon, in his statement, said Thieu put forward "a comprehensive, statesmanlike and eminently fair proposal" deserving the support of all who seek peace.

"If the other side is prepared for serious negotiations, and willing to abide by the free choice of the South Vietnamese people," Nixon said, "this should open the way at last for a rapid settlement of the conflict."

The President called upon "the leaders of the other side to respond in a spirit of peace and let the political issues be resolved by the political process."

Curiosity proved the undoing of many American antelopes that once swarmed over the plains east of the Rocky Mountains. To attract antelopes, a hunter lay down in the grass out of sight and held up a flag, a pan, or even his own feet. The antelope would come over to investigate, and the hunter would have an easy target.

Daydreams Can Erase Summer's 'Doldrums'

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you caught in the summer doldrums?

Many people are. They have come down with the hot weather blues. Life seems stale, routine and dull, too humdrum to be stood.

"Nothing seems worth doing," they say.

That's nonsense. There always are a number of things worth doing. If nothing else, you can write down a list of fairly odd daydreams and try to make a few of them come true.

For example, you might—

Take a correspondence course in sky writing.

Get a part-time job as a human fly.

Count the contents of a can of peas.

Become the donor for the first human freckle transplant.

Listen for the crack of doom.

Sing a bawdy song at your next PTA meeting.

Beat City Hall.

Adopt a baby dolphin and keep it in your bathtub.

Champ at a bit.

Paste your own portrait among the photos of the "ten most wanted criminals" in your local post office and see how long it is before you're caught.

Take a ride through a sewer in a glass-bottomed boat.

Run away from home with your baby sitter's mother.

Learn Esperanto.

Go on a diet of hard tack.

Write a new old folk song.

Try to whistle Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

Memorize a poem by Allen Ginsberg backwards.

Peel a watermelon.

Write a long fan letter to the lonely old guy nobody remembers in midsummer—Santa Claus.

Try to teach an old dog at least one new trick.

Tattoo your wife.

Go down in the basement and see if you can make a batch of home brew as good as your grandpop made during prohibition.

Play like you've got $10 million, and then compose a long last will and testament in which you disinherit everybody.

Stock Market Hit Hard By Declines

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's rough, very rough now," a leading Wall Street broker says of the stock market slump that has erased an estimated $100 billion from the value of stocks in the last two months.

The market Thursday suffered its worst beating in four consecutive days of decline and hit another 1969 low. It has been on the skids since reaching its 1969 high May 14.

"Once the slide gets going it sort of gathers momentum. There's no way to tell how far it will go," said the broker, Eldon A. Grimm, senior vice president of Walston & Co.

"There is a lot of cash on the sidelines but investors apparently are waiting to see when the market is going to hit rock bottom. The bottom will be made in the next two or three months. Then we will go into a fairly good bull market."

The market's retreat has been attributed to a variety of reasons. These include record interest rates, uncertainty about congressional action on extending the income surtax, apprehension about business prospects, disenchantment over the lack of substantial progress in the Vietnam peace talks and worry over the heating up of the Middle East situation.

When the market attained its 1969 high on May 14, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials stood at 968. It closed Thursday at 847.79 on a drop of 13.83 points for the day. The two-month loss is about 12 per cent.

Trading has been on a moderate scale during the decline. Many investors have switched into municipal bonds, which are yielding income of about 8 per cent against an average of 4 per cent for common stocks.

High interest rates are making it very costly for corporations to raise money. For example, Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. sold $150 million of debentures Wednesday at a record interest cost of slightly more than 8 per cent.

The rise in interest rates to record levels was triggered by the Federal Reserve Board's clamping down on the amount of money available for lending to banks and increasing its interest rate in an effort to stem inflation. The banks, in turn, boosted rates.

"The market decline is something we have been anticipating for six months," said Harold Dorsey, chairman of Argus Research Corp., a New York investment advisory organization. "When you have tight money—one of the tightest situations this century—it's bound to have an effect on business.

"I say that there is nothing to tell how deep we are going to go. It's too early to define the depths of the valley or the breadth of the valley."

Here is where some of the stocks among the 30 issues making up the Dow Jones industrial average closed Thuesday in comparison with their 1969 highs:

American Telephone, $53.50 and $58.12; Bethlehem Steel, $31 and $36.62; Du Pont, $130.50 anc $165.50; General Electric, $85 and $98.25; General Foods, $81.50 and $86.25; General Motors, $75.50 and $83.37; Jersey Standard, $74 and $85.37; United Aircraft, $56.87 and $81.12.; and Woolworth, $36.62 and $38.75.

and the Vietnam war and to express moral support for those whose conscience compels them to disobey draft laws.

But it drew a distinction between such expressions and actual draft evasion counseling.

The court also held that the trial judge, U.S. Dist. Court Judge Francis J. W. Ford, erred in requiring the jury to answer 10 special questions in addition to returning the general verdicts.

The court said the effect of such questions was to restrict the freedom of the jury in reaching the verdicts.

Accordingly, the court said, the verdicts could not stand.

The majority opinion was written by Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich, and was concurred in by Judge Edward M. McEntee. The dissenting opinion was authored by Judge Frank M. Coffin.

The majority opinion upheld the contention of Coffin's attorney, former UN Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, who argued that the convimtion "flies in the face" of U.S. Supreme Court decisions protecting free speech. Spock's attorney, Leonard B. Boudin, had argued in his appeal that Americans should have no "conspiracy imputed to them" for opposing the war. He said the essence of the defense was the right to condemn publicly the war and the draft.

Defense attorneys also had objected to the government's charge that the defendants "conspired" to counsel young men to avoid the draft. They contended that the word "conspired" conveyed secrecy, and they maintained that the defendants never made any effort to hide their activities.

The appeals court rejected this contention, however, saying that "the defendants' primary object was publicity, and their conduct was designedly open.

"A group of vigilantes agreeing in the town square to solicit cohorts to call out a lynch mob would not be absolved because their agreement was open," the court continued.

"Nor should their agreement be protected by the First Amendment. . .," the court added.

The defendants were indicted by a federal grand jury in Boston Jan. 5, 1968.

Collins Happy With Role As 'Odd Man Out' on Trip

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The wags are saying that Michael Collins is like the guy who stayed on the Santa Maria while Columbus went ashore.

While Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. take man's first steps on the moon early on July 21, Collins will pilot the command ship alone in moon orbit 60 miles above them.

"Well, I think I would probably be less than honest if I said I thought I had the best seat of the three," says Air Force Lt. Col. Collins.

"On the other hand, I can also say with complete honesty that I'm happy with the seat that I have ... I like to feel they couldn't be doing what they are doing unless I were there doing my third of the part.

"I don't feel the slightest bit frustrated. I couldn't be happier than to be where I am."

A slender, cheerful man of many dimensions, Collins, 38, is neither awed by his destiny nor unduly impressed with the importance on his role in the epic adventure.

"Well, of course, just my own personal viewpoint, I'm not going anywhere that a couple of previous crews haven't already gone," he said in a recent interview.

"It looks to me that if you took Apollo 11 and the four preceding manned Apollo flights —the five flights altogether—it's sort of like if you took five guys six feet tall and you told them they had to get over a 30-foot wall.

Michael Collins

"I feel sort of like the piece de resistance in a way—if all goes well. But we're really just that last guy getting over that 30-foot wall, and if he didn't have the shoulders of five people under him to stand on, he wouldn't be there."

When Armstrong and Aldrin separate from the command ship July 20 for the descent to the moon, Collins in effect becomes the lonely lifeguard of the Apollo 11 million.

If trouble develops aboard the fragile moonship on the way down, he holds the only hope of survival for his colleagues.

But he cannot land the command ship on the moon. So if rescue is impossible, he must fire his rocket and return a quarter-million miles to earth alone, leaving Armstrong and Aldrin stranded, to die on the moon.

"I think it's an extremely remote possibility but those are the facts of the matter, as we all know," Collins said. "I'm sure Neil and Buzz understand."

While the "best possible job" has been done to insure crew safety, he said, danger is inherent in such a mission.

"If, for example, a micrometeorite of sufficient size hits, or if a crack develops, well then air leaks out, and that's just an inescapable fact," he said.

"And there are other equally weak links in the chain. We hope they won't break, those links, and we've made them as strong as humanly possible, but if one of them breaks, it's broken."

He does not welcome the prospect of becoming a national hero.

"I don't know," he mused. "Unfortunately, it's one of those things you'll never know until it happens, if it happens. And by that time it'll be too late.

"If you don't like it, it'll be too late. You know what I mean? You don't have any chance of backing out. I ... I think I would prefer to remain anonymous.

"You know, I'm not really big on parades and speeches and that sort of thing. I enjoy going where I want to go when I want to go, without people following me around.

"You know?"

Protestant Scholar Foresees Shocking Changes in Churches

NEW YORK (AP) — Out of the murkiness of the present commotion and changes in the churches, a Protestant scholar has taken a long look at the eventual results of it all—and he sees some shockers ahead.

Among them: The disappearance of sermons and Sunday morning church services; growing interest in Jesus and less in the mystery of God; broad church consolidations; multiple memberships by some believers in more than one church.

The Rev. Dr. Roland W. Tapp, of Philadelphia, a United Presbyterian specialist in religious education, says "part of the upheaval now going on in the churches is temporary, but much of it will have permanent effects."

Recently on a three-month research assignment for analysis and planning, Dr. Tapp said in an interview that indications are that the organizational structures of churches "are not going to make it" to the end of the century.

"The long-range prospects are good for essential Judeo-Christianity, but not for the institutions," he said.

Dr. Tapp, a one-time missionary, California pastor and World War II bomber pilot, is a former professor of psychology and philosophy of religion at Kentucky's Center College and of Biblical languages at San Francisco Theological Seminary.

He offered his lively preview of the future church at a recent gathering of religious publishers.

Items on the forecast included:

—A re-enactment of the fundamentalist-liberal fight of 60 years ago ... It already has resulted in a marked polarization of the church at all levels ... The split may become irreparable.

—With Protestants and Roman Catholics "no longer in real dispute" over major doctrines, they will move increasingly toward "merger at practical levels"—between fundamental Protestants and fundamental Catholics, and between liberal Protestants and liberal Catholics.

—Most institutional members will be 45 years old, and up. "There will be a steady decrease in total membership... fewer youths will join the church."

—On the other hand, there will be "increasing interest in religion and Christianity" among college students and young adults but "they will continue to avoid the institutional church."

—Christian teachers will see themselves "more as fellow-seekers" rather than "transmitters of a heritage." They "will be more interested in Jesus and less in God" even though this seems a "flat contradiction in Biblical terms."

—The Consultation on Church Union will bring unification of major Protestant denominations amid "great wailing and gnashing of teeth," but the new connective church "will be no more of a monolith than it is now."

—"Sermons are out. And so is the Sunday morning worship service at 11 o'clock. The death rattle will be long and loud and gruesome."

—The main theological shift will be away from the doctrine of divine transcendence toward a "doctrine of panentheism," which holds that "God is in everything," in contrast from pantheism, which says "God is everything."

—Racial integration "will be a fact within the churches ... It already is a workable everyday fact at headquarters levels."

—Church property, valued totally at $80 billion, will go on tax rolls. "In a pluralistic society with Christians rapidly becoming a minority, this kind of tax-exempt wealth simply cannot be tolerated. It won't be."

Highlights of Moon Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The high points of the Apollo 11 flight will come on Sunday, July 20, when the lunar module landing vehicle is to touch down on the moon and on Monday, July 21, when two astronauts walk on the lunar surface.

Here are highlights of the mission schedule, as announced by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. All times are Eastern Daylight.

Wednesday, July 16

9:32 a.m.—Saturn 5 rocket blasts off from Cape Kennedy to put astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins into orbit 115 miles above the earth at 17,400 miles an hour.

12:16 p.m.—Third stage of rocket fires to increase speed to 24,200 m.p.h. and Apollo 11 zips out of earth orbit toward the moon, 230,000 miles away.

1:41 p.m.—Astronauts separate command ship, pivot around and linkup nose to nose with lunar module, pulling it free of its housing atop the rocket's third stage.

Thursday and Friday, July 17-18

Apollo 11 coasts outward, making midcourse corrections as needed to zero in on moon. Two color television transmissions planned.

Saturday, July 19

1:26 p.m.—Apollo 11 slips behind the moon and astronauts fire main engine to put the ship into a lunar orbit ranging from 69 to 196 miles high. After two orbits, lasting four hours, they again fire the engine to adjust the orbital path to 62 by 76 miles. For more than a day the astronauts will orbit, checking their navigation and mapping the landing site.

7:22 p.m.—Aldrin crawls through tunnel into LM to check systems for two hours.

Sunday, July 20

9:32 a.m.—Armstrong and Aldrin enter LM.

1:47 p.m.—Armstrong and Aldrin separate LM and begin descent to lunar surface. Collins remains in lunar orbit in command ship and will show television views of separation, and the lunar surface.

4:19 p.m.—LM lands in the moon's Sea of Tranquillity near a crater named Moltke. For 10 hours, Armstrong and Aldrin check systems, rest, don back packs and make other preparations for walking on moon.

2:12 a.m.—Armstrong opens hatch and starts five-minute descent on ladder attached to one of the landing legs. He pauses on second rung to open a compartment containing a black and white television camera which will relay live to earth his first steps on the surface.

2:21 a.m.—Armstrong steps on the moon.

2:41 a.m.—Aldrin joins Armstrong on the surface, and during stay of about two hours they plant the American flag, gather soil and rock samples, take photographs, deploy scientific instruments and evaluate their ability to work in the moon's one-sixth gravity. All this is relayed to earth by the television camera mounted 30 feet from the LM.

4:42 a.m.—Astronauts return to LM and for nine hours they rest, eat and prepare for liftoff.

1:55 p.m.—LM ascent engine fired to lift the cabin section off the moon, leaving the descent stage with its landing legs on the moon. The take off ends lunar surface stay of nearly 22 hours. For 3½ hours, Armstrong and Aldrin fly rendezvous mission to catch up with Collins in the command ship.

5:32 p.m.—Command ship and LM dock, Armstrong and Aldrin return through tunnel to rejoin Collins in the command cabin.

9:25 p.m.—LM is jettisoned in lunar orbit.

Tuesday, July 22

12:57 a.m.—Behind the moon, astronauts fire engine to blast out of lunar orbit and start the return trip to earth.

Wednesday, July 23

Apollo 11 continues the 2½-day coast toward earth begun Tuesday; astronauts make any necessary course corrections and vacuum cabin to capture possible lunar germs. Two television programs are scheduled during the journey.

Thursday, July 24

12:51 p.m.—Splashdown in the Pacific Ocean about 1,200 miles southwest of Hawaii. Frogman drops from helicopter into raft, opens Apollo hatch and tosses in biological garments which the astronauts put on. Spacemen step into the raft and spray themselves with a disinfectant before being lifted by helicopter to the deck of the carrier Hornet.

On carrier they transfer into an airtight trailer to start quarantine. In the trailer are a doctor and a technician who will stay with them. President Nixon is on the carrier but because of the quarantine he does not greet the astronauts. He talks with them through a phone plugged into the side of the trailer.

Friday and Saturday, July 25-26

Carrier and escorting ships steam toward Hawaii with astronauts remaining in quarantine.

Sunday, July 27

Hornet arrives at Ford Island in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Trailer, with astronauts inside, is transferred to a C141 aircraft for flight to Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston. Astronauts move through a plastic tunnel into airtight Lunar Receiving Laboratory. Spacecraft and rock samples, in sealed boxes, also are brought to the lab for extensive study.

Tuesday, August 12

If the astronauts have developed no illnesses and the rocks show no signs of lunar bacteria, Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins are released from quarantine.

Youth Swept Over Spillway

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — James Adams, 19, drowned after he was swept over the spillway at Sugar Creek Lake Thursday evening.

Witnesses told officers that Adams was wading along the edge of the spillway.

His body was found three hours later in turbulent water below the spillway.

A similar drowning occurred Wednesday near Kirksville where Dennis Albertson, 22, a park ranger at Thousand Hills State Park, waded too close to a dam and was carried over the spillway.

Anonymous Tips Has Huge Cash 'Reward

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — An anonymous telephone call led police Thursday to $22,786 in a trash container across the street from their headquarters.

Police Chief R. E Brians said all but $2,786 of the money apparently belonged to the First National Bank of Mena, Ark. Brians said the bank had mailed $20,000 Wednesday to the Federal Reserve Bank at Little Rock.

He said postal authorities confirmed that a mail bag was missing from a mail truck from the Mena area.

The money was found in a large paper bag after a man told police by telephone that while driving near Hot Springs he spotted a paper bag near a culvert, and found "the damn thing was full of money."

The caller said he "didn't want to get involved" and refused to identify himself other than that he was a Texan.

'Hippie Hostels' Available in City

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Redevelopment Authority is leasing two of its buildings for use as hippie hostels this summer.

The hostels will be operated under stringent rules and supervised by the Massachusetts Council of Churches. The authority leased the properties for $1 each through Sept. 30.

Males and females will be separated; no drugs will be allowed; guests are subject to search; no visitors are allowed after 9:30 p.m., and lights-out is at 12:30 a.m.

Guests also will be called on to be discreet in areas outside the hostels to prevent neighborhood wrath.

The rate is 25 cents a night.

One hostel is in the Back Bay, the other in the South End.

Difference in GI Bills

A generation ago, something like one out of every two returning World War II veterans took advantage of the opportunities offered by the GI Bill to further their formal education in colleges or technical schools or on-the-job training.

Today, only one in five veterans is participating in the "Cold War" GI Bill. Nearly 20 per cent of the 2.7 million Vietnam war veterans mustered out so far have not finished high school, yet only 4 per cent of them have applied for a special high school studies subsidy provided in the 1967 bill.

Federal officials would like to know the reasons for these startlingly different records.

The explanations may be numerous, but two of them seem fairly obvious.

The World War II GI Bill was a munificent package which a grateful nation presented to its citizen-soldier heroes. The government not only picked up the full tab for tuitions but paid for books and materials and gave veterans a living allowance as well.

Under the present bill, veterans receive an allowance only, the amount depending upon marital status and number of dependents.

A more important difference, however, would seem to have to do with the general backgrounds of the two groups of veterans.

World War II saw near-total mobilization of the male population. There were no deferments for ordinary studies beyond high school. When the war ended, not only were those whose educations had been interrupted or postponed ready to take them up again, but they were joined by millions of middle-class Depression youths who suddenly possessed the financial means to go to college.

By contrast, the Vietnam war might be called a "poor boys' war." Those young men who have neither the inclination nor the aptitude for college are taken first. A larger proportion of the nation's soldiers are members of disadvantaged minority groups than in any previous war. The middle-class youth, who goes to college as a matter of course these days, is draft-exempt until he has completed his degree work and thus has little need for GI educational aid when his period of service is completed.

No one has measured the tremendous gain to American society by the mass higher education of millions of World War II veterans, if it could be measured. Likewise we can only guess at the loss to the nation in so many Vietnam era veterans passing up the educational chances open to them.

Government concern was manifested in President Nixon's setting up of a Presidential Committee on Vietnam Veterans last month. Composed of high administration officials, such as the secretaries of Defense, Labor, and Health, Education and Welfare, its purpose is "to find new programs for a new generation of veterans."

The committee has yet to hold a meeting. It should begin its work soon, for it is charged with a vital task. The nation cannot afford not to find ways to motivate a greater percentage of its service veterans to better themselves educationally.

"Take a Deep Breath!"

Bankers Desert Nixon for Lobbyists

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A group of lobbyists representing the biggest banks in the country sat in the House Banking and Currency Committee as Chairman Wright Patman of Texarkana, Tex., marked up the new bank-holding bills.

The lobbyists included Jack Yingling of the First National City Bank of New York; John Holton of the American Bankers Association; Matt Hale of the ABA; Don Rogers of the Association of Registered Bank Holding Companies; and Robert Oliver of Sperry and Hutchinson, Inc., the S and H Green Stamp Company, together with three executives of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, biggest bank in North Carolina.

The lobbyists watched every vote that was taken on every item in the bank bill. And when the committee was finished, they were able to telephone their banking bosses back home that they had scored an amazing victory. Every Republican congressman on the committee deserted the Nixon administration to give the bankers exactly what they wanted.

Five Democrats also deserted their chairman, Rep. Patman, to vote with the bankers.

Significantly, half of the congressmen who deserted Nixon and Patman to line up with the bankers were either stockholders or directors in banks themselves.

At issue was the question of whether banks can go into business in competition with their own customers. This is a real advantage to banks which have set up non-banking enterprises such as department stores, insurance agencies, furniture and carpet factories, TV and radio stations, trading stamps and even pizza parlors.

—Plugging Loopholes—

Under this system which Patman and the Treasury Department sought to change, a bank can lend money at lower interest rates to its own department store or pizza parlor, as against a higher interest rate to a competitor. Or it can require a borrower to go down the street and do business with a subsidiary owned by the bank.

What Rep. Patman and the Nixon administration sought to plug was a loophole in the 1956 multi-bank holding company act which permits single banks to own commercial enterprises. For a good many years only small country banks took advantage of this. But 18 months ago the big banks spotted this loophole and there has been a stampede to take advantage of it.

Among the foremost of these has been the First National City Bank of New York, whose lobbyist, Jack Yingling, watched the House Banking and Currency Committee last week.

Thirty-four of the 100 largest banks in the nation have either formed or announced their intention of establishing holding companies in the last 18 months. They are already in 100 different types of businesses.

The Patman bill, aimed at divorcing banks from competitive businesses, was a clearcut attempt to plug the loophole in the 1956 law and even tighten it. The Treasury Department bill, not as strong as the Patman bill, contained a grandfather clause whereby banks which had subsidiary business firms prior to June 50, 1968, could retain them.

However, neither bill survived the high-pressure tactics of the banking lobbyists. They had persuaded Rep. William Widnall, New Jersey Republican and friend of the bankers, to introduce the kind of bill they wanted which, among other things, permitted the banks to hold on to travel agencies, pizza parlors, radio and TV stations and all other forms of business which they had acquired up until four months ago — Feb. 17, 1969.

—Watching the Congressmen—

The Wachovia Bank of Winston-Salem has been active just prior to that time, especially in acquiring insurance agencies. It has also gone into the computer business. Its subsidiaries were formed on Dec. 51, 1967.

The man whom the Wachovia executives were watching during the markup of the bill was the Greek-American congressman from Durham, N. C., Nick Galifianakis, who defeated the grandson of R. J. Reynolds. In that election Galifianakis played up the fact that he was the son of an immigrant running against a scion of big business. But on this key vote Galifianakis went down the line for big business.

Joining him were the following Democrats: Robert Stephens, Ga., who owns stock in the First National Bank of Athens, Ga., Tom Gettys, S.C., trustee of an estate with stock in the Rock Hill National Bank of Rock Hill, S.C.; together with Tom Bevill, Ala., and Charles Griffin, Miss.

Every Republican on the committee joined in supporting the bankers against the Nixon administration bill. Bank stockholders or directors among the Republicans included William Brock, Tenn., connected with the Hamilton National Bank of Chattanooga and Knoxville; Chester Mize, Kans., stockholder in a bank holding company; William Stanton, Ohio, connected with the Lake County National Bank; Del Clawson, Calif., connected with the Home Bank of Compton; J. Glenn Beall, Jr., Md., director of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Baltimore; and Albert Johnson, Pa., who stated in committee meeting that he is a bank director.

Note: Several Democrats who own bank stock, including Henry Reuss, Wis., Tom Rees, Calif., Richard Hanna, Calif., and Lenore Sullivan, Mo., voted with Chairman Patman for a no-compromise bank bill.

The Seal of the President

Mrs. L. T. Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times: You are right. The reverse design on the Kennedy half-dollar is the Presidential Seal. The law does not require the Great Seal of the United States on a coin. Just the eagle on any denomination larger than a dime. The Seal of the President of the United States resembles the U.S. seal, but there are some variations. It is the personal property of the President and no one may use it for any reason without his consent. This copy was received from the White House expressly for use in my column and I am happy to use it to demonstrate an answer to your question.

John Greenlaw, Tacoma (Wash.) News Tribune: Your Barber-head quarter with the head of Liberty in three-dimensional relief is a rarity these days. It was very popular to produce this effect on the dime but very few 25-cent pieces have been seen. There are many who have never actually observed this craftsmanship. I suggest you send it to James Johnson, Coin World, P.O. Box 150, Sidney, Ohio 45365. He will examine it for authenticity and run a photograph in his column for others to see. Your collector's item will be returned to you with his thanks.

Mr. Dean Smith, Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times: If you will look at the extreme upper edge of your five-dollar bill, just above the United States of America, I am sure you will find the words FEDERAL RESERVE NOTE. If it were a silver certificate, it would say so in this space. This particular series (1950-E) is signed by Granahan and Fowler and, according to my records, is still in print. Paper currency does not change dates each year like our hard currency and for that reason it is possible that your note may still be on the press. If so, there isn't much of a chance it will have more than an intended value.

Miss Dorothy Kapity, Akron (Ohio) Beacon Journal: I am sorry if your paper did not carry the address to help you order proof sets. Right now, it wouldn't be of much value because no further orders are being taken for proof coins. Secondly, it would be impossible to order back-dated sets. The mint discontinued this policy many years ago. It is never possible to order anything but current dates, and when the new issues are being readied for public consumption, this column will give the proper method and address.

One-dollar-size coins will find their way into general circulation, especially in the West. Five years ago, one western community was in need of dollar coins to the extent that the merchants actually glued two half-dollars together to make a silver dollar.

This is only July but we must award the 1969 prize for self-restraint to East. We have known players to remain quiet when their partners make the most atrocious mistakes, but it takes a real diplomat to remain quiet when his partner follows up his mistakes by criticizing him.

West got off to a good lead. The jack of hearts was the best card he could place on the table. What's more, he continued with the 10 after East played the eight and South the five.

South was in with the king, cashed the ace of clubs and led his deuce of diamonds. At this point, West had an automatic good play at his disposal. He should have played his king of diamonds. This play would hold South to just one diamond trick and might even shut the whole diamond suit out. South might duck in dummy and finesse the next time on the theory that West had started with both king and queen.

However, West played the three and the nine was played from dummy. East made the very good play of letting it hold. This held declarer to two diamond tricks.

South abandoned the diamonds, led a club from dummy and went right up with the king after East showed out. Then he cashed the ace of spades and led a second diamond. Once more West should have put up the king but he played low. South went up with dummy's ace and threw West in with that well-preserved king. West was in a double-barreled end play and had to give South his ace-queen of spades and jack of clubs.

While South was scoring the rubber, West said to East, "Couldn't you have taken your queen of diamonds the first time the suit was led?"

Here is where East won the prize. He replied, "Sorry, partner. I pulled the wrong card."

A—The year 1789, in which George Washington was elected.

Q—Is there a fish that can actually climb trees?

A — One of the strangest fish in the country of Thailand is the climbing perch. This fish has prickly spikes on its scales and can crawl on the ground or climb a tree.

Saigon Gets Set For U.S. Pullout

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

It can be stated with assurance that the Thieu government in Saigon believes the time is now ripe for a gradual withdrawal of all U.S. combat troops and their replacement with Vietnamese units.

This information comes from contacts in Saigon in the confidence of the highest circles of the Vietnamese government.

The Vietnamese believe this gradual withdrawal is desirable for three reasons:

 To meet the desires of American public opinion.

 To ease the problems caused in Vietnam by the continued presence of large numbers of foreign troops.

 To meet the needs of South Vietnamese nationalism and national pride essential to the building of a stable, independent nation.

It is known the Saigon government believes that given the right circumstances, 50,000 to 75,000 U.S. troops can leave before the end of 1969.

By the end of 1970, assuming things go right, the withdrawal of another 100,000 U.S. troops might be possible without danger to the safety of South Vietnam.

All this would add up to about 160,000 men, all the actual U.S. combat troops on the ground in South Vietnam.

It is assumed in these calculations that in a goodly number of cases each U.S. unit will be replaced by two to three South Vietnamese units.

These figures on the rate of American withdrawal are highly tentative, of course. They depend in part on Hanoi's military plans, part on the rapidity with which improvements can be made in the South Vietnamese army, navy and air force, and part on how much military backup and support the United States is prepared to give the South Vietnamese forces.

An essential part of the program, as the Vietnamese see it, is that the United States be prepared, so long as the war continues and no peace settlement is reached, to back up the South Vietnamese infantry with strong air, artillery, naval, communications, logistics and other technical support and to supply the South Vietnamese with the arms, equipment and supplies to make them superior in these respects to their North Vietnamese and Viet Cong foes.

It can be said authoritatively the only Vietnamese concern in carrying out this program will come if Saigon begins to belive that the heavy reduction in U.S. forces will lead in turn to a U.S. reluctance to give the air, naval, artillery and logistical and technical support and financial aid they feel they must have to continue their defense in the absence of a peace agreement. That is, they don't want to be deserted and they worry that there may be a connection between the numbers of U.S. troops and American support.

On their side, the South Vietnamese plan some drastic reforms. As in Korea, there must be a heavy weeding out of inefficient majors, colonels and generals and a rapid promotion of able junior officers. The Vietnamese estimate that in these higher officer ranks, 25 per cent are political appointees, most of whom must go.

The latest assessments from Vietnam indicate a great deal of satisfaction with many of the new crop of captains and lieutenants, if care is taken with regard to promoting the best and removing those who don't come up to standard.

At the same time, there will be a stepped-up training program mixed with a determined policy of putting South Vietnamese ground units into fire missions that Americans have been used to handling. The Vietnamese will get American air and technical support. But they will be tested more and more on their own. Only in this way will the basic weaknesses in officers, training and tactics be discovered and corrected. This will laad to some bumbles. But the Vietnamese believe that it is only through being on their own and making their own bumbles that they can become ready for their new responsibilities.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Best Freckles Treatment Is to Avoid Sunlight

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — Twenty years ago I had several treatments for freckles. A liquid was applied which caused the skin to blister and peel. I think it contained radium. Is this treatment still used?

A — You may have reference to monobenzone lotion (Benoquin), a prescription item, although this compound does not contain radium. A 2 per cent cream of hydroquinone applied twice a day will not bleach your freckles completely but it will cause them to fade. Many skin specialists, however, advise against using chemical skin bleaches. Avoiding sunlight or using masking cosmetics is preferable if you feel you can't be proud of your freckles.

Q — What is keratosis? What is the best treatment?

A — This is a hardening of the outer layer of the skin occurring as small, usually pigmented, spots on the exposed parts. In elderly persons the lesions are called senile freckles or age spots. They may also be associated with chronic seborrhea or many years of working in the sun.

Self-treatment is not advised but your doctor or a skin specialist could first determine the true nature of the spots and prescribe appropriate treatment.

Q — In a recent column you mentioned an elbow brace for chronic bursitis. Where can one get it? Does it relieve the shoulder too?

A — This brace, made to the specifications of Drs. Field and Ilfield, orthopedic surgeons of Beverly Hills, Calif., can be ordered through M. J. Benjamin, Suite 210, Story Building, 610 Broadway, Los Angeles, Calif. 90014. It would not help a bursitis of the shoulder.

Q — In a recent column you said there hadn't been any known cases of encephalitis since 1930. My grandson had this disease in September, 1968.

A — There are several kinds of encephalitis. My answer dealt with encephalitis lethargica or Iceland disease.

Q — What is Estinyl given for? What are its side effects?

A — This is one of the female hormone preparations given chiefly to relieve menopausal symptoms. It should not be given to anyone who has cancer. Too large a dosage of any female hormone may cause nausea, dizziness and headache.

McCovey Tops All-Star Roster of NL Starters

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey, San Francisco home run slugger, topped the National League All-Star poll released today and newcomers Felix Millan of Atlanta and Cleon Jones of the New York Mets made the starting line-up as first time selectees.

McCovey, the Giants' first baseman, narrowly edged Hank Aaron, Atlanta's right fielder, 296-295 for the most votes cast in the annual balloting of players, coaches and managers.

The vote, announced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, determined the eight starters (pitchers excluded) who will face the American League July 22 at Washington. The Nationals have won six in a row and hold a 21-17 edge in the series.

Managers Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cards and Mayo Smith of the Detroit Tigers, the 1968 World Series rivals, will select the pitchers and other members of the 28-man squads to be announced in the next 10 days. Starters, except pitchers, must play at least the first three innings.

Millan's victory over Glenn Beckert, the highly regarded second baseman of the Chicago Cubs, was one of the most interesting developments. It was the closest contest on the ticket with Millan, making the squad for the second time, beating Beckert 137-110.

In the only other close competition, the Cubs were the winners when Ron Santo took third base over the challenge of Tony Perez of Cincinnati, 196-151.

Don Kessinger, the Cubs' shortstop, joined McCovey, Aaron and Santo as repeaters from 1968 by outdistancing Denis Menke of Houston 228-103.

Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's fine catcher, won in a breeze over Randy Hundley of the Cubs, 261-76. Only four catchers received votes and there were none for Jerry Grote of the Mets, the 1968 starter.

Matty Alou, Pittsburgh center fielder who leads the majors in hits, was voted into the starting outfield with Aaron, named for the 15th time and fifth straight as a starter, and the Mets' Jones, who is the league's leading hitter.

McCovey was a big winner at first base with 296 votes to 33 for runnerup Lee May of Cincinnati.

The top three outfielders were Aaron 295, Alou 232, and Jones 152. Next best was Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, a four-time batting champ, with 56, followed by Cincinnati's Pete Rose, the 1968 batting king, with 53.

Willie Mays of the Giants, who holds a host of All-Star records, ranked sixth among the outfielders with only 49 votes but he undoubtedly will be picked to the team by Manager Schoendienst. It was Mays, in the unlikely role of a sub for ailing Pete Rose, who was the Most Valuable Player in last year's 1-0 National League win at Houston.

The starters were evenly divided between divisions with four from the East and four from the West. Chicago and Atlanta each had two starters and Cincinnati, San Francisco, New York and Pittsburgh one each. A total of 40 players received votes with Menke getting 103 at short and 19 at second base.

Every Cincinnati starter, except the shortstop, received votes. The defending champion Cardinals polled a total of 21 votes, 16 for outfielder Lou Brock and five for second baseman Julian Javier.

Simpson's Grid Pact Not Signed

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

O.J. Simpson's contract with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League remains as unsettled as Joe Namath's New York real estate. Gale Sayers, for one, hopes Simpson signs.

"I've heard he intends to set the league on fire," the All-Pro running back said in Chicago Wednesday. "I hope he signs. He'll find out that pro ball is much different than college ball."

Sayers' comments came at a news conference called by the Chicago Bears to end questions about Sayers' knee which he injured last November in a National Football League game against San Francisco.

"My knee feels as strong now as it did before it was hurt," he said. "I go to training camp next week and I don't want to be bothered by questions about my knee, so I'm saying this now."

While Buffalo opened training camp for rookies in Niagara Falls, N.Y., Simpson celebrated his 22nd birthday in Los Angeles where he's working on a television film ironically entitled, The Last 10 Yards. Namath also was on the Coast, winding up a movie called Norwich. There was no indication the mop-haired quarterback will show up at the New York Jets Long Island training camp on Sunday.

Namath retired on June 6 rather than obey Commissioner Pete Rozelle's order to give up his interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by gamblers.

Namath's retirement seems to be catching, especially for the Jets. The world champions lost 30-year-old offensive guard Bob Talamini, the fourth established player to leave the team since their Super Bowl victory.

In Baltimore, Colts Coach Don Shula said he'll meet Sunday with quarterback Earl Morrall who indicated Wednesday he also might retire to enter a business venture. Shula said Morrall will be No. 1 when the Colts report for practice July 19 because "John Unitas still has to prove his arm is sound."

Unitas was sidelined most of last season with an injured arm while Morrall led the Colts to the National Football League championship.

In other retirements, 35-year-old Matt Hazeltine announced he was leaving the San Francisco 49ers after 14 years as a starting linebacker.

Sedalia All-Stars Take Clinton In State Tourney

The Sedalia All-Star team shut out Clinton 7-0 in the first round of the Missouri State Senior Babe Ruth Tournament at Houston Thursday night.

Steve Eck was the winning pitcher, giving up only four hits while striking out 13 batters and walking none.

Playing errorless ball the local All-Stars scored seven runs and 11 hits. Steve Eck, Ray Hammond, Larry Neville and Mike Dalton collected two singles each with Dave Nash, Pete Green and Dave Pirtle getting doubles.

The outstanding defensive ball played by the locals held Clinton scoreless as they collected three of their four hits in the third inning, but were unable to get a runner across the plate for a score.

The Sedalians are scheduled to play their next game Saturday at 7 p.m. It is not known at this time just what team they will be opposing, pending the outcome of Friday's games between Tri-County and Houston, and Sikeston and Clinton.

Marichal Tames Dodgers, Hurts Thumb In Process

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal's right thumb is pretty sore but there's nothing wrong with his arm. Just ask the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"He's the best pitcher in the National League," Los Angeles Manager Walter Alston said Thursday night after San Francisco's brilliant right-hander tamed the Dodgers 3-0 on three hits, one a bunt. "He's got all the pitches and he throws them all over the plate."

Well, almost all, according to Marichal, who said he jammed his thumb while grounding out with the bases loaded for the final out of the second inning.

"It's so sore it feels like it's broken," he moaned. "My control was bad (he walked three) and I couldn't throw my curve ball for strikes after I hurt the thumb, so I only threw the curve to show it to them. You have to throw everything against this team. I threw a lot of screwballs."

In other National League activity, Atlanta held off San Diego 3-1, Cincinnat nipped Houston 5-4 in 10 innings, the Chicago Cubs ended a five-game skid with a 6-2 victory over the New york Mets, St. Louis shelled Philadelphia 9-3 and Pittsburgh edged Montreal 2-1 in 11 innings.

Marichal's masterpiece was the Giants' third consecutive triumph and 10th in 13 games, enabling them to creep within 2½ games of the pacesetting Dodgers in the NL West although remaining in fourth place. Atlanta is one-half game out and Cincinnati two back.

In running his record to 12-3 with his eighth straight complete game, Marichal, who missed several starts earlier in the season with a rib injury, yielded a leadoff single to Maury Wills, a one-out double to Tom Haller in the second and Wills' safe bunt to start the ninth after Marichal had retired 17 batters in a row.

Willie McCovey, who fouled a ball off his foot Monday and hadn't played since, boomed a two-run double in the third following singles by Bobby Bonds and Willie Mays, saddling Don Sutton, 11-9, with his fourth straight setback.

Sutton, serving a two-week military stint, has been commuting from Ft. Ord, Calif., and his control has been off because he hasn't been able to throw between starts.

But, observed Alston, "McCovey is liable to hit one off you even if you practice every day."

Sedalia's Youngsters Dominate Track Meet

Coach Max Fields, director of the Sedalia Summer Recreation Program, is well pleased with the Sedalia track and field team composed of the age group from 8 to 14. Thirty-two boys and girls traveled Wednesday by bus to Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield, to dominate the preliminary Ozark Empire Track and Field Meet.

Coach Fields stated that out of 40 individual events Sedalia boys and girls won 34 ribbons qualifying them to compete for medals in the Championship Ozark Empire Track and Field meet at Springfield August 6.

Thirty-eight Sedalia boys on the track and field team, sponsored by the Sedalia Optimist Noon Club, travel to Kansas City Saturday to compete in the Optimist Olympics Track and Field meet composed of teams sponsored by Optimist clubs from five states-Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri. The meet will be held at Southeast High School with the 13 & 12, 11 & 10 and 9 and under age group starting at 8:30 a.m. and the open, 17 & 16 and 15 & 14 age groups starting at 12:30 p.m.

Coach Fields stated that the Optimist Olympics meet has a number of relay events and emphasis will be placed on a full slate in relay teams in all age divisions. The Sedalia track and field team has high hopes in winning the team trophy.

The results of the individual events at Springfield are as follows:

Boys 9 and 10

100 yd. dash: Rodney Cline, 1st, 13.5.

220-yd dash: Jeff Jackson, 1st, 33.1.

High jump: Henry Klover, 1st, 3'10"

Broad jump: Henry Klover, 2nd, 13'5".

220-yd. relay: Sedalia, 2nd 33.3 (Roy Webb, Keith Atteberry, Ray Jones, and Dave Smith).

GIRLS 9 and 10

Broad jump: Joan Lukowski, 2nd, 10'1", Shelly Halloway, 3rd, 9'11".

220-yd. relay: Sedalia, 1st, 33.5 (Lynda Maxwell, Joan Lukowski, Susan Lovan and Shelly Halloway)

BOYS 11-12

Harrelson and Killebrew Spike Teams to Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hawk Harrelson, his wings stiff from half a season on the ground, is starting to stir and his pace, for the last week at least, is almost as fast as Harmon Killebrew's, who's been flying all year long.

Both Harrelson and Killebrew hammered home runs Thursday helping Cleveland and Minnesota to victories and continuing hot slugging streaks.

Harrelson's shot, which helped the Indians whip Detroit 7-5 in 11 innings was his fourth in the last seven days. Killebrew, with five homers in seven days, drilled his 25th of the year in Minnesota's 6-5 victory over Kansas City.

In other American League games, Baltimore trimmed Boston 5-4 and Oakland bombed Chicago 12-2. California's game at Seattle was postponed by rain and New York and Washington were not scheduled.

In the National League, Cincinnati nipped Houston 5-4 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh took Montreal 2-1 in 11, Chicago tripped New York 6-2, St. Louis battered Philadelphia 9-3, San Francisco shut out Los Angeles 3-0 and Atlanta dumped San Diego 3-1.

Harrelson, who took time off before battling Detroit to put a verbal blast on his ex-manager, Gil Hodges, then teed off on the Tigers. He walked in the fifth, stole second, took third on a fielder's choice and scored on a sacrifice fly for the Indians' first run.

Then he rapped his 14th homer of the year with a man on in the seventh as Cleveland rallied for four runs to take the lead. Norm Cash's pinch homer tied it for the Tigers in the bottom half of the inning but Tony Horton's bases-loaded, two-out single drove in Cleveland's winning runs in the 11th.

Harrelson's homer raised his season's batting average to .205—about 80 points less than Killebrew. The Twins' slugger lifted his major league leading RBI total to 86 with a run-scoring single and his homer helping Minnesota to a 6-0 lead against Kansas City.

Then the Royals stormed back on homers by Lou Piniella, Chuck Harrison and Mike Fiore but they fell one run short.

"It started out like a laugher," said Minnesota Manager Billy Martin, "but it nearly ended up a crier. We really need a game where the guys can go out and relax, but it wasn't to be."

Oakland, 3½ games back of the Twins, kept pace by whacking Chicago. The A's exploded for eight runs in the fourth inning—their biggest single inning of the season and John "Blue Moon" Odom coasted to his 12th victory with a three-hitter.

Sal Bando poled a three-run homer in the big inning as the Athletics sent 11 men to the plate and collected seven hits. Rick Monday also homered for Oakland and Luis Aparicio and Buddy Bradford connected for Chicago.

Frank Robinson, who had smashed his 20th homer earlier, singled home Paul Blair with Baltimore's winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning against Boston.

Three homers by Carl Yastrzemski, Rico Petrocelli and Joe Lahoud—the last one in the ninth inning to tie the game—kept the Red Sox in the game.

Southern Waters Clear, But Fishing Only Fair

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Southern lakes and streams are clear but fishing is only fair, the State Conservation Department reported today.

Heavy rains in northern and central Missouri make the weekend outlook the same as it has been most of the season — high and muddy with poor fishing the rule.

Stream conditions:

Grand, Platte, Nodaway, Chariton, Black Water, Lamine, Mississippi, Missouri, Salt, and Cuivre—high and muddy, poor. Pomme de Terre— Dingy, fair for rough fish.

Sac—Dingy, fair all species.

Osage — High and muddy above Lake of the Ozarks, fair for catfish on trotlines, bass fishing fair in coves. Near normal immediately below Bagnell Dam, channel cat fair to good.

Gasconade and Big Niangua—Clearing, fair all species.

Meramec and Big River — High and muddy, poor.

Big Piney and Current — Clear, poor to fair all species.

Eleven Point — Clear, trout fair.

Jacks Fork and Black—Clear, fair all species.

St. Francis—Dingy to muddy, fair for catfish.

Castor—Clear, poor to fair all species.

James — Slightly dingy, fair for bass, carp and catfish.

Elk— Clear, poor to fair all species.

Lake conditions:

Bull Shoals — Clear, fair for black bass, crappie and channel cat, best catches during nighttime hours.

Taneycomo—Clear, trout fair, bluegill good.

Table Rock—Clear, fair black bass, crappie and channel cat, best catches at night under lanterns, white bass fair to good but spotty.

Clearwater—Clear, fair channel cat and flathead catfish on trotlines.

Wappapello — Clear, fair all species.

Norfork — Clear, black bass and channel cat poor to fair.

Pomme de Terre—Upper end dingy, lower clear, catfish good on trotlines, other species fair.

Lake of the Ozarks — Most flood gates have been closed. Entire Osage arm muddy, Niangua arm clearing with fishable water from Highway 54 Bridge to Highway 5 Bridge, Glaize arm clear in mid-section, white bass, channel cat and walleye fair on those arms. Gravois Arm clear, with channel cat and black bass fair to good.

Pony Express—Slightly dingy, black bass fair, channel cat and bluegill good.

Jacomo — High and dingy, fair all species.

Trimble— Dingy, channel cat fair, bluegill good.

Schell-Osage — South Lake clear, North Lake muddy, fair in south lake, bass fair to good on ponds in the area.

Montrose, Thomas Hill and Thousand Hills—High and muddy, poor.

Paho— Dingy to muddy, fair all species.

Sever— Dingy to muddy, catfish fair on stink bait, liver and worms.

Hunnewell and Little Dixie — Dingy and muddy, catfish fair on stink bait, liver and worms.

Busch Area — Clear, fair all species.

Duck Creek — Clear, 90 per cent moss covered, bass fair to good, bluegill good.

Farm ponds and community lakes—Good in southern half of state, northern and central poor to fair.

Trout areas—Fishing good for rainbows.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Storing Wedding Gown Is No Problem for Them

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I recommend that Mrs. L. S. V. take her wedding gown to a professional firm for packing. Mine is preserved in this way so that, hopefully, my daughter, 3, will wear it some day. The fee for this varies according to the value put on the gown, which is cleaned, placed in a fully transparent case and sealed against soil, moisture, moths, etc.—FRANCES

DEAR POLLY—At the time of my marriage 11 years ago I was advised of an excellent way to store my wedding gown. It was rolled lengthwise and gently folded to fit into a large, five-gallon metal can. The veil can be stored with the gown. The lid must be sealed on with tape so the container is completely airtight. This prevents discoloration of the fabric by light and dirt and also prevents the entrance of any insects.

Last summer, at the time of my brother's wedding, my slipper satin gown was brought out of this storage and the fabric was bright as new. Even the veil was in perfect condition.—LINDA

DEAR GIRLS—I also would use lots of blue tissue when following Linda's suggestion. Remember that a cotton gown should not be stored with starch in it. Whether you use a big box or a can, do not store this in a damp basement or an overheated attic. Be sure to label it so it will not be opened by mistake and then left with a crack open. Weighted silk gowns cannot be expected to withstand long storage, so do not be disappointed if one is opened in years to come and it has split or deteriorated. If the head piece to which the veil is attached is likely to rub or tear the veil it is best to separate them. Roll the veil, do not fold as veils do not always store as well as expected.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Please tell me how to wash and clean crystal prisms. What does one use for washing them?—MRS. A. C.

Swimmers Shooting At Record

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) —Three-hundred of the world's best swimmers shoot for world records at the three-pool Santa Clara Swim Center complex today in the third annual international invitational swim meet to be held here.

Some 50 Olympic medals—many of them won by the more than three dozen foreign stars entered—are represented in the meet that has drawn competition from Japan, Mexico, Canada and Eastern Europe.

The top U.S. stars, including Olympic heroes Debbie Meyer, Marc Spitz and others, are entered in the three-day meet.

Felipe Munoz of Mexico, winner of the 200-meter breaststroke at the Olympics, and double gold medal winner Roland Matthes of East Germany head the foreign entrants.

Munoz figured to be in for a stern test today when he faced Brian Job, who finished third in Mexico City but may well be the class of the world in his event.

Other final events scheduled today were the men's and women's 400-meter freestyle, 100-meter backstrokes; 100-meter butterfly events; three-meter diving competition and 400-meter medley relays.

On Saturday, ABC will televise 90 minutes of the meet, including the dramatic duel between Matthes, who won the 100 and 200-meter backstrokes in the 1968 Olympics, and Santa Clara's Mitch Ivey in the 200 backstroke.

Cardinals, Royals To Home Base

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis and Kansas City return to their home fields tonight after brief road trips. The Cards came home on an encouraging note, winner of three out of four games with Philadelphia, but it was just the reverse for the Royals who lost three to Minnesota while winning one.

The Cards, 11 games behind the National League's East Division leader Chicago, again is only two games shy of .500 ball, a figure they have failed to achieve since shortly after the first game of the season. They have won 43 while losing 45.

St. Louis hopes to keep its momentum as Pittsburgh arrives at Busch Stadium for a three-game set before the All-Star break.

Steve Carlton will be on the mound tonight for the Cards, hoping to boost his record to 11-and-5 for the season. He will be opposed by Luke Walker of the Pirates.

The Cards concluded their series at Philadelphia with a 9-3 victory. Julian Javier had a lively hand in the decision. He drove in two runs with a double and got two more with his fifth homer of the season.

Kansas City again almost pulled victory out of the fire. Trailing 6-0 after five innings, the Royals erupted for one run in the sixth on Mike Fiore's solo homer and four in the seventh.

Chuck Harrison and Lou Piniella each slammed two-run homers in the seventh before Ron Perranoski shut off the rally to preserve the Twins victory for Dave Boswell.

The Chicago White Sox move into Kansas City tonight and will start Gary Peters against the Royals and Bill Butler.

The Royals have now fallen 13½ games off the pace in the American League's West Division with a 36-49 record.

Tag Larry Weigel As Assistant Coach

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Larry Weigel, former Kansas State University basketball player, has been appointed assistant to Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons at K-State.

Weigel, from Hays, Kan., got his bachelor's degree in 1967 after lettering three years in basketball. He received his mater's degree this year.

He will serve as freshman basketball coach and academic adviser to basketball players.

Even Chance In British Open Tourney

EDINA, Minn. (AP) — If it weren't for the presence of defending champion Dan Sikes, they might be calling this the Obscure Open.

With most of the game's glamor names in England for the British Open, the rookies and also-rans barged out of the ranks of the faceless young men and turned the $100,000 Minnesota Golf Classic into their private field day.

John Lively, up from the qualifying ranks, and lanky Mac McLendon shared the first round lead with 66s, five under par on the 6,913-yard Braemar Golf Club course.

Lively, a 29-year-old Texan who has won only $1,030 in official tour money this year, was such a long shot that even he didn't think his early 66 would stand up for a share of the lead.

"They'll tear it up," he said Thursday. "The course is playing extremely easy. They'll shoot a lot of good scores out there."

They did.

But only McLendon, who finished only a few minutes behind the former Texas A&M ace, could match his effort.

Sikes, a hard-hitting veteran from Jacksonville, Fla., and Homero Blancas followed at 67, Blancas with an eagle on the finishing hole.

A group of five was at 68, including Dave Stockton, George Smith, teaching pro Dave Gumlia, Chuck Courtney and J. C. Goosie.

In all, 60 players matched or beat par, but only 21 played in the afternoon.

Eight Survivors In Net Tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Australia had four representatives among eight survivors—and what else is new?—as the $33,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships advanced into the quarter-finals at Longwood.

Top-seeded Rod Laver, bidding for a fourth straight title, second-seeded John Newcombe and fourth-seeded Ken Rosewall passed their initial tests Wednesday. But third-seeded Tony Roche was ousted Thursday night in a stunning upset.

Roche's defeat didn't exactly hurt Aussie chances for another championship. He was beaten by determined Fred Stolle, an unseeded countryman, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Mr. Right Tops Field In Handicap

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mr. Right was completely rested during the winter and now he is paying the price. But if everything goes according to trainer Evan Jackson's plan, it will be well worth it to Dansar Stable, owner of the 6-year-old horse.

Mr. Right heads a field of nine for Saturday's Amory L. Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park, the second in a planned bid to win three straight $100,000-added, 1¼-mile races.

On July 4, Mr. Right won the Suburban Handicap at Aqueduct, and if all goes well in the Haskell, Jackson says he will be sent back in the Brooklyn Handicap July 19 at Aqueduct.

Mr. Right will carry topweight of 120 pounds and is expected to be opposed by nine, including October House Farm's Iron Ruler, 119; Elmendorf's Verbatim, 116, and Frank J. Viggiani's Sly Bird, 115.

Three other big races Saturday are the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park, the $75,000-added Dwyer Handicap for 3-year-old fillies at Aqueduct and the $50,000-added Coltillion Stakes for 3-year-old fillies at Liberty Bell.

Six were entered Thursday for the 1¼-mile Hollywood Gold Cup, with Gene Goff's Nodouble highweighted at 129 pounds.

Nodouble, winner of the Santa Anita handicap and California and second to Arts and Letters in the metropolitan Handicap in his last start, is favored to beat Mr. and Mrs. Bert W. Martin's Rising Market, 122.

A field of at least five is shaping up for the 1¼-mile Dwyer, and it appears Ogden Phipps' King of the Castle, the Louisiana and Illinois Derby winner, will be the starting highweight with 120 pounds.

Other probables include Claiborne Farm's Jay Ray, 119, and King Ranch's Distray, Neil Hellman's Gleaming Light and Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Godspeed.

Mrs. Whitny Stone's Shuvee, winner of the Acorn, Mother Goose and Coaching Club American Oaks, has been assigned topweight pf 124 pounds in the 1 1-16 mile Cotillion, where she is expected to oppose at least seven other fillies including Marcia W. Schott's Secret Verdict and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stoll's Restless Tornado, 114 each.

The Will to Live Prevents Suicide

Dear Ann Landers: I read with special interest your column on suicide. You said individuals who have suicidal patterns develop them early in life and if a person is bent on destroying himself, he will do so and nobody can stop him.

I wish I could say you are wrong, but I can't. I do believe, however, that you could have added something to your answer. Please tell your readers that an alert and perceptive friend, relative or doctor might be able to help a self-destructive individual decide that he WANTS to live.

I speak from experience, as one who attempted suicide twice. After the first attempt, a nurse (who should have been doing something else for a living) told me I was merely trying to get attention. This so infuriated me that I was determined to kill myself and prove her wrong. I realize now how sick I was and how twisted was my reasoning.

No person will take his life if he feels he is really needed. This was my problem and it still is, to a large extent.

There are times, when I feel hopelessly inadequate and I scream at my husband that I am a burden, that I'm not fit to live. He screams back, "I love you! I need you!" until I am quiet. Then he holds me in his arms and gives me the reassurance I need. If someone I love said he wanted to kill himself I would take him in my arms (oh, the miraculous healing qualities of a tender touch) and tell him I love and that I need him. Then I would go to the phone and call the best psychiatrist in town. —Still Fighting.

Dear Still: You are half way home. You'll make it, I am certain. Please write again six months from today. I'd like a progress report.

Dear Ann: Stop telling parents they should make their kids take music lessons no matter how much they hate to practice. My mother made me despise the piano because of her nagging. Now I wouldn't go across the street to hear Horowitz.

They called me the "Little Leasebreaker." Two sets of neighbors moved out of the building on account of me. One neighbor told me she had a headache for six months straight. I said I was sorry but my mother paid me ten cents an hour to practice and it was my only source of income. She said, "I'll give you fifteen cents an hour if you don't."

I'm a father now with three kids of my own. None of them is musically inclined and I don't push it. If you want music we turn on the hi-fi. — Peace.

Dear Peace: And who do you think plays the music you hear on the hi-fi? Musicians who practiced, that's who!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting married soon and my mother and I are having a fuss over the invitations. Mom plans to have engraved on the bottom, "Please omit gift. We want their presence, not your presents."

I say it would be in poor taste. No etiquette book mentions this. Can you advise us? —Wrecksville

Dear W: I hope your mother will see it your way. No reference to gifts should appear on an invitation.

Legal Regulations For Moon Landing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Although the moon is international territory, there is no question about the legal rights of the Apollo 11 astronauts to land and explore it in the name of the United States.

The only major requirements are that it be done according to international law and for the benefit of all countries.

Legal experts say the 1967 space treaty clearly recognizes the role of individual countries in the exploration of celestial bodies even though it refers to astronauts as "envoys of mankind."

The 1967 pact, which deals specifically with the moon and other celestial bodies, guarantees the free access of all countries and declares there must be complete freedom of scientific investigation.

There is nothing in space law to prevent astronauts from displaying or planting their nation's flag. There is nothing to require them to carry any international symbol, such as the United Nations flag.

The Soviet Union, in fact, already has set a precedent by sending a Soviet hammer and sickle emblem to the moon in an unmanned capsule which made a soft landing on Feb. 3, 1966. At that time Soviet officials declared it had not claimed ownership of the area where the landing took place.

The space treaty says that "outer space, including the moon and other celestial bodies, is not subject to national appropriation by claim of sovereignty, by means of use or occupation, or by any other means."

Not many other restrictions will apply to Astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. They must exercise care that they do not contaminate the moon or bring back substances which might have a harmful effect on the earth environment. They must provide full information to other countries. And they must confine their activities to peaceful pursuits.

The major prohibitions in the treaty are not likely to have any bearing on this initial landing, since they deal with the placing of nuclear weapons on the moon, the building of military fortifications and the carrying out of military maneuvers.

The Apollo 11 crew could establish any sort of facilities or installations necessary for peaceful exploration. The only limitation on such facilities is that free access be granted to astronauts of other countries.

What happens if the Apollo 11 or succeeding astronauts should discover rich deposits of precious metals or gems? The treaty contains no prohibition on bringing back moon products. The only provision which might apply in a general way is a stipulation that all countries, exploring the celestial bodies, should conduct all their activities in space "with due regard to the corresponding interests" of other parties to the treaty.

Lincoln Again Receives Publicity

Lincoln has again received publicity on its achievements with an article in "Capper's Weekly."

The article, which mentions David Hare, executive vice-president of the Lincoln Bank, tells of the little town of Lincoln, 20 miles south of Sedalia, that its proud citizens call "The Town Alive on 65."

Capper's Weekly mentions the fact that during the last year Lincoln was the ninth and smallest town in Missouri to receive the Five Star Award from Governor Hearnes. Lincoln won first place in competition with towns its size in the Missouri Community Betterment contest, as well as a National Distinguished Achievement Award.

It told, too, of its accomplishments in civic improvement, its airport grant, its parks, schools, utilities, recreational facilities, and its centennial celebration.

Ladies Aid Meets

The Ladies Aid of St. Paul's Lutheran Church met July 3 in a regular business session.

The Rev. Melvin R. Geffert, pastor, presented the scripture reading and the program topic, "Women in Politics."

Mrs. A. H. Wagenknecht, president, pssided. Mrs. Carl Bergmann attended as a guest.

Hostesses, Mrs. P. J. Bergmann and Mrs. Lillian Mosier, served refreshments during the social hour.

Soviets in Hurry to Meet President Nixon Face to Face

By WILLIAM L. Ryan
AP Special Correspondent

Soviet leaders seem anxious and perhaps even in a hurry to meet President Nixon face to face.

Hints dropped by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in his policy statement Thursday could hardly have been broader.

In some cases, the Kremlin appears to cling to solidly frozen positions on major issues. But the Gromyko statement throws into relief the worries gnawing on the Soviet mind.

What are President Nixon's intentions toward Red China? What role will the President's Romanian visit play in this? How much danger is there of a Soviet-American showdown in the Middle East? Can the U.S.S.R. rest easy about Europe while devoting more and more attention to Asia and the problem of the Red Chinese? Is there a secure way of braking the cost of the strategic weapons race?

Pointedly, Gromyko noted Nixon's campaign slogan calling for transition from an era of confrontation to one of negotiation. He even seemed to put words into the President's mouth.

"The U.S. President's pronouncements in favor of a well-prepared Soviet-American summit meeting have not, of course, gone unnoticed in the Soviet Union," said Gromyko.

The Kremlin, said Gromyko, wants good and friendly relations with Washington as a matter of national interest on both sides.

The last Soviet-American summit was in June 1967, after the world was shaken by the lightning Arab-Israel war. Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met President Johnson at Glassboro, N.J. Temporarily, the tension seemed to ease a bit.

Gromyko suggests a "well-prepared" summit, which can mean prior meetings at the foreign ministers' level or even advance meetings of each side with its allies.

The why of the Soviet approach should not be too difficult to fathom.

For one thing, Moscow's concern about China is real.

Theodore H. White, in his book on the election, represents Nixon in the primary days of 1968 as intending, as president, to proceed quickly toward making contact with Peking, on the assumption that "in 10 or 15 years it would be impossible to run the world if Red China weren't part of it." The Russians may now wonder if Nixon sees Romania as a channel to Peking.

Historically, the Russians have disliked the idea of having to watch more than one major front at a time. Now there are several-Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Western Europe, the Mediterranean. There is the ever-present danger of a nuclear showdown.

Winds Do Damage In City

High winds and lightning caused assorted damage Wednesday night as a storm front moved through the area between 5:45 and 9 p.m.

Firemen answered several calls during the height of the storm. At 6:51 p.m. firemen were called to the residence of Maurice Campbell, 2417 North Woodlawn, where lightning had hit the roof and set fire to the insulation. About $100 damage was incurred.

Lightning struck a service box that went into the kitchen at the Glen Reckart home, 1209 East 11th, at 6:59 p.m. Damage was estimated as slight.

Slight damage was also caused by lightning at 8:51 p.m. when it hit a fan on a gas heater at the Thomas Chancelor home, 1705 South Osage.

The police department received reports that a large tree limb was blown down on State Fair Blvd. and that limbs had broken service wires at 1820 South Warren and 1834 South Warren. A tree was also blown

Campers Lost

The owner of these two campers damaged by the storm saw an opportunity for some free advertising Wednesday night. In this view looking west, the dark clouds coming toward Sedalia are bringing additional rain in a second storm. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Storm Uproots Tree

The large maple tree shown above was twisted off two feet below the ground in Wednesday night's storm. The tree is on the Kenneth Klamer property, 1717 West Third.

Apollo is Clear For Countdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Two technicians tightened a nut and stopped a leak in the Apollo 11 moon rocket's fuel pressure system Thursday, clearing the way for the final countdown to start on schedule.

"Project officials reported that the problem has been resolved satisfactorily," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The countdown start was planned at 8 p.m. EDT Thursday, aiming toward a liftoff next Wednesday at 9:32 a.m. for man's first journey to the surface of the moon.

The problem developed less than 12 hours from the scheduled start of the countdown clock. It was isolated to a nut at the base of one of four 31-cubic-foot helium gas storage bottles attached to the inside of the booster's liquid oxygen fuel tank.

The helium is used to pressurize the liquid oxygen tank, forcing the fuel into the five engines at the base of the rocket that give the booster 7.65 million pounds of liftoff thrust.

Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins—who plan to blast off atop the 363-foot-tall booster Wednesday at 9:32 a.m. —spent most of Thursday in a command ship trainer practicing the critical rocket burn needed to propel them out of earth orbit toward the moon.

Friday, the three astronauts are to undergo their last major physical examination before launch.

The first tasks scheduled in the countdown included feeding electrical power into the entire three-stage Saturn 5 launch vehicle, installing small retrorockets on the booster's first stage to steer it clear of the rest of the rocket after the second stage separates and connecting some explosive devices to separate the spaceship from the rocket.

Altogether, the countdown included 93 hours of work spread over 5½ days. The remaining

Soviet Appeals to US, Then Assails Chinese

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko made a dramatic appeal for "friendly relations" with the United States Thursday and at the same time bitterly assailed Red China for its hostility toward Russia and her Communist allies.

The major foreign policy statement, delivered at a Supreme Soviet —parliament — meeting, appeared to continue a trend toward warmer U.S.-Soviet relations. It also underscored the gradual worsening of Soviet-Chinese relations.

"Even our most rabid enemies have never used such unworthy methods on such a scale as the Chinese leaders," Gromyko told the Supreme Soviet deputies.

Referring to the troubled Soviet-Chinese border, Gromyko warned China that any attempt to speak "in the language of threats—or more so, of arms—have encountered and will encounter a fitting rebuff on our part."

Then, taking a conciliatory tone toward the United States, Gromyko said the Soviet Union favors wide-ranging negotiations with the Nixon advministration.

"We took note of President Richard Nixon's statement that in his opinion a period of confrontation is followed by an era of talks. The Soviet Union favors talks.

"If the U.S. government continues to follow this line in practice, we are willing, as we have been in the past, to find common positions on bilateral questions with the United States and on outstanding international problems.

"The U.S. President's pronouncements in favor of a well-prepared Soviet-American summit meeting have not, of course, gone unnoticed in the Soviet Union."

"We are developing good relations with the United States and we want these relations to be friendly."

The 60-year-old foreign minister also denounced the war in Vietnam, but in milder terms than usual.

He said that the United States "pursues aggressive aims" in Vietnam but expressed hope that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong proposals at the Paris peace talks "will meet with a positive response from the United States."

Girl Dies In Auto Accident

STOVER— One youth was killed and three other hospitalized following a one-vehicle accident on Highway 52, two-tenths of a mile west of Route YY, east of Stover, at 12:45 a.m. Thursday.

Killed in the accident was Donna Sue McNeive, 17, Sunrise Beach. According to the Highway Patrol report, she was pinned in the 1964 Oldsmobile station wagon she was driving.

Injured were Daryle Wayne Hill, 18, Gravois Mills, Karen Lynn Albritten, 16, and Robin Jean Albritten, 14, both of Sunrise Beach. Hill received a head injury, Karen Albritten received injuries to the left cheek, left knee, foot and scalp. Robin Albritten received lacerations to the eyes and cheeks. The injured were taken to Bothwell Hospital in Sedalia where they were reported in fair condition Thursday morning.

According to the report the

July Off to Good Start in Rainfall

July, doing its dead-level best to beat June in rainfall, is well on the way, with 5.96 inches of rain already recorded this month.

That makes a total of 34.81 inches of rain so far this year, only six inches short of the yearly average of 40.87 inches.

The total so far for July is more than the combined total for the same period of the previous four Julys, which was 5.76 inches, according to N. U. Renshaw, U.S. weather observer here.

Among numerous other inconveniences, such as overflowing storm sewers, leaky roofs and mildew, the rain has played havoc with Pettis County farmers.

Lloyd Lewellen, Extension farm agent, told The Democrat that he estimates 25 percent of the corn and soybean crop has been lost.

"It's getting pretty late to plant any cash grain crops this year," Lewellen added, saying July 15 had been regarded as the deadline for soybeans and milo.

A request made by the Pettis County ASCS office to the state for the release of acreage in annual and long-term programs for haying and grazing has not yet been acted on, according to B. H. Wehmeyer, agricultural specialist for the state ASCS.

Wehmeyer said that the state disaster committee was waiting

Evenly-Balanced Senate Leading Toward a Compromise on ABM

WASHINGTON (AP) — An almost evenly balanced Senate tilted Thursday toward an ABM compromise as Sen. George D. Aiken, its senior Republican, called for modification of the Nixon administration's Safeguard proposal. And he predicted that if proponents reject changes "they're licked."

The Vermont veteran, one of the Senate's most influential members, broke his long silence on the ABM issue in a Senate speech in which he said "It has been obvious for some time that authority for the Defense Department to proceed with the development of an unlimited ABM system could not be approved by this Senate.

"In fact," Aiken said, "without modification we would have had to vote 'No' on the proposal."

The Vermont senator declined to choose at this time between two proposed compromises but told reporters "I think you will find an agreement on an amendment before any of them come up for a vote.

Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., propose to continue research but bar any deployment or site acquisition. Sens. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., and Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., favor deployment for research purposes of the system's radar and computer components with a prohibition against deploying its missiles.

Aiken became the 50th member of the 100-member Senate to speak against ABM deployment, according to continuing checks by The Associated Press. Forty-eight are listed as backing the administration proposal, while two—Republicans Winston L. Prouth of Vermont and John J. Williams of Delaware—are publicly uncommitted.

But Prouty is expected to follow the lead of his senior colleague, putting an absolute majority of the Senate on record against the administration's proposal.

The problem then would be to find a compromise, or modification, acceptable to both sides.

Asked about the statement earlier this week in which Sen. John C. Stennis, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, ruled out compromise, Aiken said "If the proponents take that position, they're licked. They won't even get a majority.

"They can get modification that would not be damaging in the long run," he said.

Pass Out Charter Copies

Copies of the first draft of a proposed city charter for Sedalia were distributed to members of the Home Rule Commission Wednesday night at their meeting at City Hall.

Commission members were to study the document, specifically in light of their respective committee responsibilities in drawing it up, and present their views at a later meeting.

The first draft of the charter contains 22 articles and totals 59 pages of standard-size stationery.

Jim Mathewson was elected to head a promotion committee on behalf of the charter. The

Eliminating a Dip

Remember the big dip in Highway 65 as you approached this bridge about two miles north of Sedalia last week? The dip isn't there any more. The sagging pavement was 'shot' with a dose of lime and concrete by this Highway Department crew, raising the pavement some four inches — back to road level. The mixture was pumped into dozens of three-inch holes at a pressure of some 200 pounds per square inch. The crew, working in conjunction with area supervisor Bill Scott, is headed by Glendon Berrier, Carrollton, from the special maintenance division.

Permaneer Beats Heat

"Heat, ma'm! It was so dreadful here that I found there was nothing left for it but to take off my flesh and sit in my bones."

This witticism by an English clergyman just about describes how most Central Missourians have felt during the protracted high temperatures and humidity accompanying record-breaking rains.

An unusual number of Sedalians must have been "sitting in their bones" or crowding air conditioners Tuesday, election day for the Permaneer $1,200,000 bond issue. Of a potential 11,650 registered voters, only 2,310 went to the polls. However, the mathematicians tell us 93 per cent or 13½ to 1 voted favorably. There were only 159 negative votes — an all time low.

Members of the election boards sweated it out with doors open and fans blowing to minimize their suffering.

Tuesday's results offer anomalies by comparison. The amount of the Permaneer issue, $1,200,000, and the percentage of victory was the highest, but the voter response was the lowest. In the Rival Manufacturing Co., bond election for $750,000 the total vote was 3,497 or 12 to 1 (3,227) in favor. The Town and Country $1,050,000 bond issue resulted in 4,312 for and 566 against, a total of 4,878, the highest turn out in the three elections.

Why did the biggest bond issue of them all attract so few voters? Aside from the suffocating weather, it must be remembered that Permaneer has not yet established its factory here. In the cases of Rival and Town and Country, both expansion bond issues, each factory has hundreds of employees all of whom it must be considered turned out for their respective elections.

Regarding Permaneer there was scarcely a ripple of dissent heard prior to the election. Presumably many registered voters felt their favorable vote was not necessary, that Permaneer was a shoo-in and anyway, it was so hot. Maybe their vote would not be missed.

Among the loyal promoters of Permaneer great satisfaction exists. A mere 159 persons were agin' it. That's considerable shrinkage of the customary negative brigade of 1,500 who usually turn out for any kind of election, political, bond or otherwise.

We hope somehow that the favorable result of this third industrial bond election involving Permaneer will find its way into the next quarterly issue of the Missouri Economic Review published by the Missouri State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

Sedalia has been neglected in this most important promotional review that has wide circulation.

Local business and industrial conditions, especially when they are as favorable as the Permaneer bond issue, must be accorded recognition. This is a vital promotional factor for our own community as well as informative to others in our desire to make Permaneer permanent in Sedalia.

By Long Neglect U.S. Faces Drought

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Along the Atlantic seaboard right now are two illustrations of man's efficiency in achieving the thrills of life and man's inefficiency in not achieving the necessities of life.

At Cape Kennedy, the United States is about to launch the most carefully rehearsed, most expensive, most unnecessary project of this century by which man will reach a piece of drab, radioactive, lava-like real estate hitherto romantic because of distance — the moon.

The launching will succeed because a vast amount of money and the best scientific brains in America over a period of seven years have been lavished on this moon shot. Meanwhile, up the Atlantic coast, the capital which voted the twenty billion dollars to reach the moon is desperately short of the second essential to man's life — water — all because of lack of planning, lack of foresight, and lack of money — the same ingredients which have put the moon shot on the verge of success.

The Potomac River from which the capital of the United States draws its water is gradually drying up. Its upper reaches are so shallow that rocks stick out of the stream bed like the bones of a starving old woman. Drained by communities and real estate development along its banks, the upper Potomac is starving.

Below, as it flows through Washington, the once majestic river has become an open sewer. Two hundred and forty million gallons of human excrement, detergents, wash water and industrial waste are poured daily into the river. The sewage is only partially treated.

Not even fish can live long in this poisonous water. The days when small boys splashed and cavorted off the piers of Alexandria are no more. The bacteria count is 100 times higher than the level considered safe for swimming.

—Unnecessary Delay—

However, none of this had to happen. Twenty-five years ago the Roosevelt administration foresaw the fact that growing Washington would need more water, and the Army Engineers prepared a comprehensive plan for a far-flung system of dams and reservoirs on the Potomac and its tributaries.

Immediately there was an outcry from real estate interests and big farmers whose land would be inundated. The plan was shelved. It was revived under Kennedy, only to be shelved again. This time the conservationists joined the real estate interests.

There was talk of small dams instead of big ones — dams which would not spoil the river's natural beauty. But nothing was done. There was a lot of talk. A tri-state commission was appointed. Surveys were made. Commissions traveled up and down the river, inspected the Virginia and Maryland tributaries. But nothing happened.

So for lack of planning, lack of action, lack of money, the once full-boxomed, beautiful Potomac has become an emaciated old lady, her bones protruding, smelly, unkempt, unsightly.

And water is short all over the capital of the United States while the same government which has neglected its own front yard reaches for the moon.

—A National Problem—

The plight of the Potomac is not confined to the capital alone. It illustrates what is happening all over the United States, from New York City where drinking water is still not served in restaurants, to Chicago which is reaching further and further into Lake Michigan for its water.

Gradually at first, but now accelerating rapidly as the population grows, water is becoming a problem. Yet the same ingenuity used in reaching the moon would solve our water problems.

Here is an illustration. Russia has reversed the direction of some of its great rivers which flow into the barren Artic where they freeze and are wasted. What a communistic nation can do, presumably a capitalistic nation can do — if it eschews politics.

For less money than it takes to reach the moon, the Missouri River could be diverted westward at around Omaha and made to flow through the parched plains of Nebraska, Kansas and Texas instead of adding its vast volume to the already brimful Mississippi.

What the nation needs, however, is a water pollution czar who can look ahead, make plans, spend money, as the moon-shooters have done. Until that time, the city of Washington will be periodically starved for water, as will other cities of this short-sighted nation.

—Nixon's Doctor Reports—

Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker, the New York psychiatrist, takes the occasion of an article in Look magazine to discuss President Nixon's mental stability and take a sideswipe at me regarding the inquiry I made of Hutschnecker during last fall's election campaign.

The results of my inquiry of Dr. Hutschnecker were not published during the campaign but came out later during a question-and-answer period at the National Press Club.

Dr. Hutschnecker makes himself out to be a very tight-lipped psychiatrist. But since he has raised the issue, he did not give me that impression when I talked to him last fall. I see no reason to raise the question of the President's mental stability at this point, though I am glad Dr. Hutschnecker reports it is sound. It might be interesting to know whether Dr. Hutschnecker complied with ethics of the medical profession by getting permission to report on the President's health before writing his article for Look.

Soviet Move Seen to Ease West European Tensions

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

BONN, West Germany (NEA) Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield's latest proposal for a drastic reduction of American troop strength in Europe has revived old suspicions in Bonn that the United States could make a deal with Russia at the expense of West Germany.

Where the Nixon administration is concerned, the suspicions are clearly unfounded. But even experienced European politicians have yet to learn that it is the President who is charged with the conduct of U.S. foreign policy and not senators, however popular or influential they may be.

Mansfield's original resolution for troop cuts was shunted aside last summer after Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia. Now he has the support of his fellow Democrats, Senators Fulbright and Symington, who apparently believe that the Czechoslovakian tragedy was an episode that already belongs to history.

However, this is not the view of West Germany, Romania and Yugoslavia, for whom the rape of Prague remains a grim reality. Even Red delegates from Italy, Australia and other countries who took part in Moscow's "international conference" had the courage to castigate Russia's aggression as a "violation of the rights of all nations."

There are other and even more important reasons why Mansfield's proposal is untimely. With the West Germans uncertain about their future, President Nixon will face new obstacles in his efforts to revitalize NATO.

Any suggestion for a reduction of American troop strength in Europe will also encourage Moscow to increase the price for conferences on European security—with the participation of the United States—and nuclear disarmament.

"In diplomatic negotiations you always take for granted what is offered free and then you begin to bargain for more concessions," said a top German official. "The Russians are past masters at such diplomacy."

If the men who influence American public opinion stay patient and cool—and, above all, if there are no secret deals with Moscow—the Russians are likely to seek a relaxation of tensions in Europe much sooner than expected.

As Bonn's specialists on communism see it, the Moscow conference was a fiasco. As was expected, it denounced Western imperialism but was unable to re-establish unity in the Red world.

There is no longer any doubt that Russia's quarrel with Red China is now the Kremlin's first priority. In this situation Moscow needs some stability in Europe.

This explains Moscow's new approaches to such a traditional enemy as West Germany and the Kremlin's urgent effort to arrange a conference on European security in order to "explore" outstanding cold war disputes. Another indication that the Russians want a detente in Europe is Poland's startling invitation to West Germany to sign a treaty recognizing the Oder-Neisse line as Poland's final western frontier.

In the past, Poland's chieftain Wladyslaw Gomulka, one of Moscow's most servile puppets, even refused to acknowledge the existence of West Germany as a sovereign state. Now he is asking only that, in addition to recognizing the Oder-Neisse frontier, Bonn sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty and give up claim "to represent all Germans."

To be sure, after Czechoslovakia it is dangerous to indulge in illusions. Despite strong objections by many Communists, the Russians continue to cling to their policy of "limited sovereignty" which—so they claim—gives them the right to use force against other "socialist" countries.

Moscow still hopes to play on anti-German feelings which are comparatively strong in some countries and reduce the whole problem of European security to a dissolution of NATO and to the recognition of all Soviet demands with regard to Germany. The Russians want the West to recognize Communist East Germany as an independent state. They also want Bonn to sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty which would leave the West Germans permanently at Moscow's mercy.

Nevertheless, new diplomatic winds seem to be blowing from the East. There are good grounds for assuming that the tactics and strategy of Soviet policy with regard to West Europe are now being reconsidered in the Kremlin.

"You must be outta your gourd—you call THAT REPARATIONS!"

"All butchers don't wear white aprons," remarked the young expert. "I played with one the other day. Of course, I shouldn't have put him in seven but he had promised never to bid a no-trump with less than 16 high-card points. This time he had only 15."

It seems that the so-called butcher had played out dummy's king and queen of diamonds and then proceeded to go down because West held four diamonds to the jack and East the long spades. We can't go along with calling this South a butcher. We feel that only an expert in very good form would have worked out the winning line of play. Here it is:

South wins the spade in dummy and notes that West had almost surely opened a short suit. Then he cashes four clubs, discarding two spades from dummy. He notes that East has shown up with four cards in that suit. Now South runs off three hearts and is careful to discard his seven of diamonds. East follows to the hearts also and, in addition, South has noticed that West discarded a heart on the fourth club.

At this point, expert South has some sort of count on the East and West hands. At least, enough of a count so he is pretty sure that West started out with either three or four diamonds. Then he leads a diamond to his ace and sees the eight-spot drop from West. South has to decide right here and now if that eight was a singleton. If he makes the right decision, he leads his 10 of diamonds and lets it ride if West doesn't cover with the jack.

If West does cover, South returns to his hand with the king of spades and now we see why he had to get rid of the diamond seven. He can lead the three and win with dummy's six if West plays the five.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Can a U.S. president veto sections of a bill?

A—No, vetoing a bill defeats all parts of it. All provisions and "riders" attached to the bill are vetoed with it and cannot be saved.

Q—In U.S. politics, what is a minority president?

A—A president without a majority in either the Senate or the House of Representatives.

Q—Which two presidential candidates failed to be elected to office although they received the largest popular vote in the election?

A—Samuel Tilden in 1876, and Grover Cleveland in 1888.

Good Life Was Relative

By BETTY CANARY

This morning, when I screamed, "Shut that door!" for the third time, it occurred to me that if I could operate my household the way my mother operated hers, I would find this a perfect opportunity for sending a child to aunt Ruth's after a book I wanted to borrow. Or perhaps I would suddenly remember I owed grandmother 35 cents from the time we went shopping together and I would insist Babs and Cissy take the money to her immediately.

But, because our family is a product of this rootless society, we live hundreds of miles away from any relatives. This kind of living allows none of the marvelous shock-absorbing security my mother knew.

Friends are fine, but, as is usual today, none of us lives at the proper distance for giving a mother a 15-minute respite when she needs it most.

My mother wasn't the only member of our family using the errand trick. I can recall various cousins showing up at our back door bearing small change or a mysterious-looking package bound securely with string. (Along with the message that aunt Helen KNEW my mother needed it this instant.) Of course, one never went home immediately. A child had to have a drink, for heaven's sake, and there were always questions to answer or perhaps doll clothes to inspect. One might even happily volunteer to help hang laundry or snap a few beans (both activities that would be greeted with loud groans at home) and all in all, the walk and the visit could last more than an hour.

I'm sure many a quarrel was stopped with this ruse and many a mother's nerves were soothed. But I'm equally certain that none of the children felt as if they were being shunted out of the house. It never occurred to me there were moments when my mother simply couldn't tolerate me another minute.

Let others talk about how wonderful it used to be when aunts and grandmothers were close at hand when mother needed help with a sick child. Let others tell over and over how great it was when a grandmother would offer to help with the mending or would send over a pie or surprise you with a plate of cookies or her special marble cake.

I'm content to listen while you sing the praises of uncles who taught nephews to ride bicycles and grandfathers who taught five-year-olds to tie shoestrings.

Wonderful things are all those but I can handle them myself, thank you.

What I long for are some beautiful relatives a few blocks away who would be content to receive 35 cents in repayment of a mythical debt or an empty box or two.

Chronic Ringworm Often Hard to Cure

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — What would cause itching blisters on the bottom of my feet? What is the best treatment?

A — The most likely cause is some form of ringworm or athlete's foot. There are several effective remedies, including undecylenic acid, tolnaftate, triacetin and Whitfield ointment (preferably half-strength).

Q — I have had a ringworm infection for many years. It is fairly well-controlled. Is there any permanent cure?

A — Chronic ringworm is often hard to cure. If it is very troublesome, griseofulvin taken by mouth daily for several months gives the best chance for a cure. This drug should be taken only under medical supervision.

Q — My son came home from World War II with what the Veterans Hospital staff calls onychomycosis or jungle fungus. It has never cleared up. What do you advise?

A — This is ringworm of the nails and is notoriously hard to cure. Sporostacin locally or griseofulvin by mouth may be helpful. Both are prescription drugs.

Q — Are there any bad side effects from prolonged use of Grisactin? It helped the fungus infection of my nails but my doctor made me stop taking it. Why?

A — This drug is a brand of griseofulvin. In some persons, prolonged use causes hives, nausea, diarrhea, headache, dizziness, fatigue and insomnia. If your doctor advised discontinuing it, he must have found evidence of these or other harmful side effects.

Q — In 1936 I had a severe case of athlete's foot. After using strong ointments for a year with no success, a doctor gave me two X-ray treatments and in two weeks I was cured. Is this treatment still used?

A — Although X-ray treatment will clear up a ringworm infection promptly, it is no guarantee against a recurrence. That is the chief reason it is not more widely used.

Q — What is a yeast infection? Can it be cured?

A — There are many yeast or fungus infections. Some, such as ringworm, affect the skin and some the lungs, intestines and other organs. Before any treatment can be prescribed the type of infection must be identified.

SPIRNGFIELD (Mo.) DAILY NEWS: Fight. Swear. Is It Healthful? — Do you fight with your wife? Use profanity?

Congratulations! You must be a normal, healthy person, doing your part to make a happier home and a healthier society.

At least that's the conclusion to be drawn from recent pronouncements.

A psychiatrist addressing a group of his peers asserted that a lively spat between husband and wife is good for most marriages and offers one of the best ways for a couple to work out for a touchy problem.

And attorneys for the Civil Liberties Union in Washington, D.C., quoted psychologists as saying that cursing is a "healthy" substitute for violence and is as basic and vital to the ultimate health of society as laughter and crying.

One thing is obvious. If these gentlemen are correct, a great many marriages are going to last, and the health of the nation is excellent indeed.

DEAR POLLY—After panty hose have started to run so they cannot be worn as such any more, I snip off the hose part, make a small rolled hem or sew elastic on the ends of the resulting panties and put them back to use. White ones could be dyed if you prefer colors.—MRS. G. R.

DEAR POLLY and Edna—A simple and inexpensive way to clean an old brass bed is to buy a bottle of tomato catsup, apply with a cloth, wipe off in a few seconds and polish. Do only a small section at a time. This leaves brass polished and beautiful.—PAULINE

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Edna to use a paste of wood ashes (from the fireplace) and lemon juice to clean her brass bed. Apply with a cloth and polish with a chamois or flannel cloth. —MRS. J. L. F.

DEAR GIRLS — NEW brass beds usually have a lacquer on them, so remember that polishing will remove this, and often not evenly. An old one probably would not have this unless the bed had been professionally polished and then lacquered. This is, of course, the most lasting treatment. I have an old one that is not lacquered. It stays polished and untarnished for quite some time by using a regular commercial brass polish. When trying Mrs. J. L. F.'s Pointer, I rinsed the ashes and lemon juice paste off before polishing, even though she did not mention doing that.—POLLY car was headed east when it rounded a curve at a high rate of speed and went out of control. The vehicle traveled 528 feet off the right shoulder of the roadway, and hit a tree. The tree was knocked down and fell across the highway, knocking down some telephone lines in the process. The car continued on for 35 feet before coming to rest. All of the occupants remained in the vehicle.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,400, and to the phone line, $15.

Winds

down in the alley back of 921 East Sixth.

Firemen also answered calls at 7:11 p.m. in the 1000 block of South New York where light wires were down in the street and at 7:20 p.m. in the 100 block of East Ninth where a Missouri Public Service transformer was shorted out.

A spokesman for the Missouri Public Service Company said that tree limbs caused a lot of broken wires during the storm and that about 12 transformers were knocked out causing individuals throughout the city to be out of power for a short time. There were no large sections blacked out, he said.

High winds twisted a large maple tree off two feet below the ground and blew it over on the Kenneth Klamert property, 1717 West Third. The tree crushed a fence between the Klamert home and the Duane McMullen home, 1617 West Third.

The high wind also blew out a plate glass window at the Firestone Store on West Highway 50 causing $290 damage and a plate glass window at Colie's Drive In, 2103 South Limit, causing $85 damage.

About $3,000 damage was caused by the storm when it toppled two camper trailers at Bob's Camper Sales on South 65 Highway. Immediately after noticing that the trailers had been blown over, Bob Benner, owner of the sales company, saw a chance for advertising and painted "See Bob For Camper Buys" on the top of one of the trailers.

Several trees were also blown down in LaMonte, according to Mayor Paul Steinkuhler. Telephone repairman worked several hours to remove trees and limbs from a cable to keep it from breaking, Steinkuhler said. Antennas throughout the city were also damaged, he added.

'Mr. Swiss' Plans to Have Business Here

Burial was in the Masonic Cemetery.

Apollo

time, totaling 40 hours and 32 minutes, was used up by several "holds" planned to permit time for crew rest or to solve problems that might arise with the rocket or spaceship.

If the Apollo 11 astronauts successfully blast off next Wednesday, they should cruise into lunar orbit July 19. Armstrong and Aldrin are to fly a lunar module—LM—to the moon's surface the next day, with Armstrong making man's first footprint on the lunar crust early July 21.

If Apollo 11 cannot blast off Wednesday, there are only two other days this month—the 18th and 21st—when the moon is in a favorable position as a target from Cape Kennedy launch pads.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

The "Friendly" Stranger The National Safety Council has these tips for children: "If any stranger stops his car and asks you for directions, stand several feet away from the car door. Never play alone in parks. Keep out of empty buildings or alleys. If bothered by a stranger, scream and make as much noise and fuss as you can to attract the attention of other people." Finally, every parent should always know the answer to this question: Where is your child now?

Ring-a-ding! About 200 years ago there was a bored teen-ager in the Bishop's Palace at Wells, England. She passed time by training swans in the palace moat by feeding them every time they rang a bell outside her bedroom window. The tradition has persisted through generations of swans and palace residents. Nowadays Albert Smedley and family feed the swans—who have added a gimmick. They ring the bell at 2 a.m. and won't stop until given a late snack.

Albert Smedley and swans

Blackout Memories Comedians Jerry Stiller and Anne Mearas are a husband-and-wife team in real life. Though he's short and Jewish and she's tall and Catholic, this has never been a problem in their marriage or as a show-business team. Anne recalls that famous New York blackout, when all electricity went out for hours. "I was pregnant with Benjamin. Amy was about 4, and enjoyed the excitement. Jerry somehow drove downtown to fetch Grandpa (Anne's widowed father) and off we went, over the bridge, to eat and drive around New Jersey, buy candles, watch the blackened skyline, and wait for the lights." Weren't you ever scared? "It felt good with all the family around."

Jerry and Anne

Shrinking Oldsters Does your grandfather look shorter? A man 5-feet-8 at 30 may dwindle down to 5-feet-5 by 65. Recent research at Brookhaven National Laboratory found that adding two grams of a calcium-replenishment medicine to the diet "produced a positive calcium balance and acted to inhibit bone resorption." Just two little grams!

Reading Beauty This year's Miss U.S.A., Wendy Dascomb (who will compete for the Miss Universe title Saturday night on CBS-tv), got to know her predecessor, Didi Anstett. Just as well, for Wendy's physician-father was reluctant to have his youngest daughter interrupt her schooling for a beauty contest. Didi convinced Doctor Dascomb it was okay because she herself went right back to school when her reign was over. Besides, Wendy's school—Stratford College for Girls in Danville, Va.—postponed her freshmen exams until she was free. So Doctor Dascomb agreed on one condition: that Wendy read two hours every day while on tour. "And good material, too!" Says Wendy, gracefully, "I don't mind. I like to read."

What kind of people buy a new Pontiac at this time of year?

Smart people. Very smart people.

The ones who know what they want in a car. And when to get it.

They want style. And they know Pontiac Catalina's style will stay in style year after year. And that it'll pay off when they finally do part with it.

They want performance. They know that Catalina's standard 400-cube V-8 is the largest engine in its class. And that it may be a long time before anybody else offers anything to equal it.

And they want value. To the extent that they've waited till now for the best possible price.

They're our kind of people. Smart. Very smart. Maybe you're one? Find out at your local Pontiac dealer's.

MARK OF EXCELLENCE

If your hemorrhoids need something more effective than Pazo®...

maybe it's surgery.

Pazo not only shrinks hemorrhoids in most cases, but actually starts relieving throbbing pain on contact—and for hours.

In fact, this soothing relief begins within seconds after you finish applying Pazo.

In moments, Pazo's anesthetic formula starts to ease the pain, quiets the itching and irritation.

And, Pazo lubricates the sensitive area thoroughly—in most cases, provides continuing relief for hours.

Try Pazo, in suppository or ointment form.

Family Trips Can Boost Your Child's IQ

With these tips, your vacation travel can become a lifelong learning journey for your youngsters

By VIRGINIA WARREN
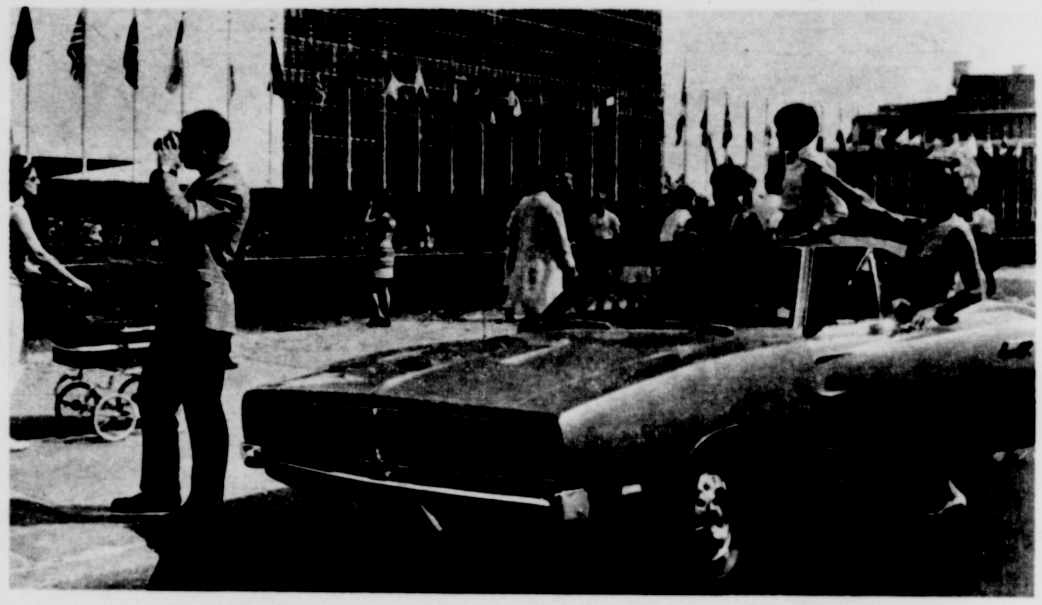
Author of "Tested Ways to Help Your Child Learn"



CHILDREN with high IQs tend to come from families who travel—who go places and do things with them. Their family car is a classroom on wheels.

On the other hand, some youngsters with learning problems have never been out of their own neighborhood—never have been farther than a few blocks from home.

When we expose our children to new sights, sounds, and activities, they not only pick up new information—their ability to learn is enhanced. That's why educators encourage family trips, both to nearby spots and across the country.

But they warn parents that trips don't automatically result in learning. It takes a little planning and forethought. Just a little extra effort can make your trip not only more educational—but more fun, too.

Here are some steps teachers suggest to ready your children for a travel expedition.

Visit the library for articles and books about the places you'll be visiting. (Be sure the books are at your child's reading level.) One Washington, D.C., father did this before taking his children to Chesapeake Bay—a mere 45-minute drive from home. A book on the Bay revealed that the oyster shells the children were picking up had been left there by pre-Columbian Indians. The shark's teeth they found had been deposited there before man appeared.

Get a map showing places of interest en route: historical sites, museums, planetariums, factories, dams. Sit down with your children and decide which to visit—places that may tie in with their special interests.

A few pieces of simple "field equipment" are helpful to have along. For example, carry a variety of containers. Children may want to collect rocks, shells, arrowheads, plants—even such "livestock" as pollywogs, frogs, crickets, fireflies. Glass jars and milk containers make excellent carryalls. Plastic bags with their twister tops are good carriers for aquatic life.

Take a notebook that can serve as a trip diary. One child may enjoy being the official recorder of the exciting events of each day. This helps him to observe and remember.

Include paperback reference books on birds, trees, animals, insects, wildflowers. It's fun for Tommy to whip out that reference book when Mom sees an unusual bird or flower. It helps your children to develop the "Let's- look-it-up" habit.

Road maps can be a great—and easily accessible—source of learning. Dave Garroway, in his book, "Fun on Wheels," says that after you teach the kids what the various map symbols stand for, what the scale of distance is, and how to locate different points, they should be able to: 1) tell the distance from one place to another; 2) find historical sites, state parks, Indian reservations; 3) identify the different kinds of roads indicated on the map—freeways, good state roads, secondary roads, or gravel and dirt spring-busters; 4) locate airports, lakes, rivers, mountains; 5) tell the population of cities and towns which may be visited.

According to the National Council for the Social Studies, what happens after your children come home from that trip is very important. Help them build on the travel information they have gathered in this way:

Encourage them to make scrapbooks containing snapshots, mementoes, and information folders taken at points of interest.

Using the trip diary, have them write letters to friends and relatives describing the trip's high points.

If they brought back plants, insects, shells or other specimens, help them set up a home "museum."

If they showed unusual interest in something they saw—airplanes or farms or marine life—ask your librarian for books on the subject, at the right reading level.

Dr. Richard C. Brown says, "A trip to Cumberland Gap, Tenn., could inspire a study of the westward movement across the Appalachians, or perhaps to read about Daniel Boone. A visit to Hyde Park could lead to reading on almost any aspect of the life of Franklin D. Roosevelt; and Gettysburg could lead to a number of areas of research, all the way from Lincoln to Eisenhower."

In fact, with just a little forethought, that vacation trip could be the start of a learning journey that would never end for your child. ◆

NEIL ARMSTRONG:

He Thrives on Danger

This astronaut will be the first man on the moon—an adventure that pales even being shot down in Korea, near-death as an X-15 rocket pilot, and a Gemini 8 mishap

By JIM SCHEFTER

INCHING SLOWLY and clumsily down the spidery Lunar Module's forward ladder, a space-suited American astronaut approaches the ultimate moment. He pauses at the dish-shaped footpad, peering downward.

His left foot moves, feeling cautiously for the alien surface of the moon. Then it touches . . .

If man and machine work smoothly, as planned, history will be made in the next few days. After a journey across a quarter-million miles of space and a narrowing, 3,000-mile-per-hour descent to the moon's craggy face, Astronaut Neil A. Armstrong will step down to meet destiny.

But it will not be the first time Armstrong, 38, has faced danger with his own life in the balance. Frequent brushes with tragedy and violent death have marked his career for nearly 20 years. Other pilots, including some astronauts, have called it the "Armstrong Jinx." To Neil Armstrong, it is a way of life.

The man chosen to be first to walk on the moon learned to fly at 16. At 19, he earned his Navy wings. At 21, he was flying sorties from the carrier U.S.S. Essex, jockeying a Panther jet on strikes into North Korea.

Wheeling and twisting through enemy skies, Armstrong earned a reputation as a hot pilot. His daring nearly killed him. "We were bridge busting in September, 1951," Armstrong recalls now, "The flak was pretty bad."

The future astronaut swept in low, triggering cannon fire into a truck convoy. Almost instantly, flak enveloped him. Chunks of wing and tail section tore away. Shards of metal ripped through control cables and severed hydraulic lines. "The plane's control system was knocked out," Armstrong says. "I could stay in the air, but I couldn't land."

Judiciously applying the throttle, he kept the Panther airborne over more than 100 miles of Chinese-controlled territory. Just behind U.S. lines, the jet coughed its last, and Armstrong ejected. He was back on the Essex within a day.

Neil Armstrong's career reflects the advance of modern aviation, from "hot" fighters to space vehicles.

But his troubles weren't over. A few months later, Armstrong spotted enemy troops in a narrow Korean valley. Rocketing into his strafing run, he smashed through a taut cable strung across the valley. The Panther jolted sideways, nearly crashing. Then it uprighted, leaving a wing tip falling behind.

The valley had been cleverly booby-trapped by the Chinese, Armstrong learned later. It had nearly worked. But this time, the pilot nursed his crippled plane home.

There were other close ones, but, says Armstrong, "All the pilots had close calls." After his 78th and last mission, Neil counted the bullet holes in his torn Panther. There were 78.

The next few years were quiet. Armstrong earned a degree in aeronautical engineering at Purdue. He also met and married Janet Shearon, an aloof, dark-haired beauty.

But it was too quiet. Neil hired on with the Air Force as a civilian test pilot. His test record reads like a catalog of 1960 American air power—the F-100, F-104, B-47, and F-102. He shifted to even more advanced aircraft and flew the rocket-powered X-1 and X-14. Then came the experimental X-15 and its B-29 mothership. Armstrong logged more than 100 flights in the B-29. On 25 of these, he was aircraft commander, responsible for both the B-29 and the X-15. He flew the X-15 itself twice in 1960, once in 1961, and four times in 1962.

It was on one of these flights that the jinx returned. Armstrong flicked through the procedures for starting the X-15's rocket as he dropped away from the B-29's mammoth wing. It didn't start. In the tense moments following, Armstrong tried again.

This time the rocket fired. "I didn't know what was wrong at first," Armstrong says with relief. Whatever it was, he went on in the X-15 to reach the edge of space at 207,000 feet and 3,818 miles per hour.

Just five months later, in September, 1962, NASA tapped Neil Armstrong for training with the second class of astronauts. For nearly two years, it looked like Neil had left the jinx behind. He assisted in getting trainers ready for Gemini astronauts, sweated through the regimen, and studied geology with fellow astronauts. On weekends, Neil flew light planes and gliders, or joined Jan at the site of their new home in El Lago, south of Houston.

But the Armstrongs had barely settled into their dream house when violent death brushed them again. Neil awoke with a start at 3:30 on a chilly spring morning in 1964 to find the bedroom filled with smoke. Flames crackled throughout the house, already eating through the roof. Choking and gasping, the Armstrongs plunged down the hall to rescue their boys, Eric, 7, and Mark, 1.

Shivering outside in the damp night air, they watched the fire gut their home. Had he not awakened when he did, the Armstrongs may not have lived to see the house rebuilt. Again the jinx had struck and missed—this time in the form of faulty wiring that started the fire.

Armstrong himself does not recognize any jinx. The least vocal and most intense of all the astronauts, he shrugs off close calls and grimly continues with his chosen work. But it is not easy on his wife and family.

Jan Armstrong viewed the coming Gemini 8 flight in March, 1966, with foreboding. Neil was commander, with Air Force Maj. David Scott as copilot. Their flight plan was ambitious: the world's second space rendezvous, the first docking with an Agena rocket, and a lengthy space walk.

A few days before lift-off, Jan belied her apparent calm by predicting that her husband "probably will" have unexpected problems in space. It was a unique revelation from that hardy breed of women who become the astronauts' wives. And the prediction was to come true.

Gemini 8 was scheduled for March 15, 1966, but was delayed for one day after minor troubles showed up in the countdown. At 10 a.m. on March 16, the Atlas rocket carrying Gemini 8's Agena target began its journey into orbit. One hour and 41 minutes later, Armstrong and Scott rode their Titan rocket skyward.

Armstrong in his X-15 plane that almost developed a fatal malfunction.

During the next six hours, Armstrong and Scott pursued Agena four times around the world. Precisely planned firings of their Gemini thrusters changed their orbit until the Agena was clearly visible. Over Hawaii, Armstrong reported that they were 150 feet from their target and were flying formation with it.

After inspecting the Agena for nearly half an hour, Armstrong closed in to perform the world's first linkup of two orbiting spacecraft. "It was a real smoothie," the astronaut radioed. Docking was complete, and the two vehicles were stable. That condition didn't last.

Suddenly the docked Gemini and Agena combination began to buck and roll like a rodeo mustang. Armstrong was convinced the problem lay with the Agena. He ordered Scott to shut down the Agena's control system while he used the Gemini thrusters in an attempt to master the wild ride. It didn't work.

Scott reactivated the Agena several times, with some lessening of the bucking, but the gyrations could not be completely stopped. Both astronauts were puzzled. Then with Agena again shut down, the ride became so violent that Armstrong became convinced of danger and blew the seal between the ships in an emergency undocking.

Now the tumbling and twisting became severe. Freed of Agena's restraining influence, Gemimi 8 went into a wrenching roll and yaw that reached one full turn every second. Control was impossible. As the forces built up, Scott reached over to pull the circuit breaker supplying power to the Gemini thrusters. The motions steadied.

The problem obviously was with Gemini. (Engineers later determined that a short-circuit caused a thruster to fire wildly. Thrusters on the Agena had been automatically trying to correct the unwanted motions.) Neil activated the small reentry thrusters in the Gemini's nose, and the craft responded. For the time Armstrong and Scott were safe.

But under strict mission rules, activation of the reentry thrusters means a mandatory end to the mission. A few hours later, with Scott's long-awaited space walk cancelled, Gemini 8 splashed down in a contingency landing area in the Pacific.

Disappointed but alive, the astronauts returned to Houston. It was the only Gemini flight to have a true emergency, and the only manned spaceflight yet conducted that ended before the planned time. It also was Armstrong's only space flight to date.

When Gemini ended in late 1966, Armstrong joined other astronauts in training for Apollo. But even that training nearly meant the end for the potential moon-walker.

Armstrong was practicing the critical phase of a moon landing with a specially designed Lunar Landing Research Vehicle (LLRV) at Ellington Air Force Base, near Houston, in early May, 1968. It was his 21st flight in the weird-looking flying machine—more than any other astronaut. Nicknamed the "Flying Bedstead" because of its resemblance to Granny's four-poster, the LLRV uses a down-thrusting jet engine to remove five-sixths of the force of gravity during training for moon-landing.

A typical flight in the machine involves a near-vertical climb to 700 or 800 feet, then reducing jet power until five-sixths of the vehicle's weight is counter-balanced. For the remainder of the seven-minute flight, the astronaut uses two lift rockets and 16 smaller attitude-control rockets to glide through final descent, hover, and touchdown.

Armstrong's flight that day went according to plan for the first five minutes. Then films show the bedstead dropping vertically to a point near the ground, hovering momentarily, then climbing straight up to 200 feet. Still under Armstrong's control, the machine hovered for a second, then darted rapidly to the left and stopped again.

In the next four seconds, the LLRV gyrated over the runway. Its nose pitched sharply downward, then swung steeply upward and rolled to the right.

"Better get out of there, Neil," shouted a ground-controller.

But Armstrong was already on his way. Activating the power ejection-seat rocket (in its very first use with a human subject), he shot sideways away from the crippled trainer. As he floated beneath his parachute, Armstrong watched the $2.1 million vehicle drop edgewise to the ground and explode.

Armstrong rehearses his role as the first man on the moon, gathering specimens of its surface for geological study at a later time.

The astronaut touched down moments later, suffering only a few bruises from being dragged by his parachute.

A NASA investigation board cited "a loss of attitude control" as the primary cause of the accident. This loss, according to the board, resulted from an early depletion of pressurizing helium in the fuel tanks—caused, in turn, by gusty wind conditions requiring extra fuel use, and by Armstrong forgetting to shut off the throttle to his lift rockets as he neared a landing.

Lack of warning was a contributing factor that "caught the pilot by surprise and undoubtedly added some confusion," the board said.

It was the last time anything caught Neil Armstrong by surprise. Along with crewmates Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin and Michael Collins, he has been training for the Apollo 11 moon landing for more than a year. If all goes well, he and Aldrin will be on the moon in a few days.

And if something does go wrong—well, our first man on the moon has proved he has the quick reaction and self-control to handle any possible, emergency. ◆

Outdoor Grilling for Fun and Flavor

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ There's nothing to compare with the mouth-watering flavor of food cooked over an open fire. So, put your grill in action often and enjoy the fun of grilling with food at its best. Use decorative paper mats, plates, and napkins, and get the most out of lazy summer living.

Chef's Note: In these recipes, cooking times and distances from coals are given only as a guide. The final judgment must be that of the outdoor chef and will be influenced by the type of grill, the intensity of heat, and the direction of wind.

Spicy Grilled Chicken

A bottled Hawaiian barbecue sauce may be substituted for the marinade-brushing sauce in this recipe.

- ½ cup lime juice
- ¼ cup soy sauce*
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 tablespoon ground coriander
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ½ cup cooking oil
- 3 ready-to-cook broiler-fryer chickens, about 2 lbs. each, cut into halves
- 1 fresh pineapple, cut into 1-in. thick slices and quartered

1. In a screw-top jar, shake lime juice and soy sauce; add seasonings and shake vigorously. Then add garlic and oil and shake. Set aside.
2. Crack thigh and wing joints of chicken so they will be flat.
3. Put chicken halves and pineapple in a shallow pan. Shake marinade and pour over all. Cover and marinate at least 2 hrs., turning and basting occasionally.
4. Thread chicken halves and pineapple onto long skewers. Brush with marinade. Grill, cut side down, 4 in. from hot coals. Turn every 5 min., brushing with marinade. Grill 40 min. or until chicken tests done (meat on thickest part of drumstick will cut easily).
5. Accompany grilled chicken and pineapple with chutney, salted peanuts, cherry tomatoes, banana chunks, and soy sauce for dipping. Serve with hot French bread and a salad of bite-sized curly endive topped with slices of avocado and mandarin orange sections.

6 servings

*An all-purpose soy sauce and marinade, teriyaki soy sauce and marinade, or Japanese-style soy sauce and marinade may be substituted.

Ham Hawaiian

Slice a fully cooked, shaped, boneless ham (allow one ½-in. slice per person). Grill slices 3 in. from hot coals about 10 min., turning and brushing frequently with a bottled Hawaiian barbecue sauce.

Quickie Kabobs

Make the entire meal a "quickie." Serve the kabobs with corn and potato chips and icy cold canned or bottled beverages. For dessert, chilled, ready-to-serve pudding from a can and packaged cookies are a delight.

Allowing ¼ lb. meat per serving, cut canned luncheon meat or bologna into 1- to 1½-in. cubes; green pepper and bacon into 1- to 1½-in. pieces. Alternately thread onto skewers along with pitted olives. Grill on greased grill about 3 in. from hot coals about 5 min., turning and brushing constantly with your favorite salad dressing (bottled or prepared from a mix) or a bottled barbecue sauce.

Double Treat Frank-Burgers

The excellent bottled barbecue sauces available in the market today impart such wonderful flavors that these burgers are positively irresistible when brushed with any one.

- 2 lbs. ground beef
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Black pepper
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- 6 frankfurters, cut in halves lengthwise
- 6 ½-in. strips Cheddar cheese
- 3 dill pickles, cut in quarters lengthwise
- Bottled barbecue sauce

1. Lightly mix the meat, seasonings and catsup together. Form into twelve flat patties of equal size.
2. Place two frankfurter halves, cut side down, on each of six patties; place a strip of cheese and two pickle strips between the frankfurter halves. Brush lightly with barbecue sauce. Top with remaining patties and brush with sauce.
3. Place frank-burgers sauce side down in a basket broiler. Brush tops with sauce and close basket broiler. Grill about 3 in. from coals 10 to 15 min., frequently turning and brushing with barbecue sauce.

6 servings

Sauce-Painted Spareribs

- 4 lbs. meaty spareribs or back ribs, cut in serving portions
- 1 cup catsup
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon prepared horse-radish mustard
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon oregano, marjoram, or thyme
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco
- 1 clove garlic

1. Partially roast meat in a 350°F. oven about 30 min.
2. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients in a saucepan. Simmer over low heat at least 10 min.
3. To Grill—Place ribs, meaty-side down, on grill. Slowly grill about 3 in. from hot coals. Turn about every 5 min., brushing with sauce. Grill until meat is deep brown and crisp, about 25 min.

8 servings

Note: This brushing sauce improves with age; it may be prepared in advance, then heated on the grill.

Pork and Bean Casserole on the Grill

- 4 slices bacon
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 cans (14 to 17 oz. each) pork and beans with tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon dark molasses
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tablespoons dark brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon oregano

1. Fry bacon in a skillet; reserve 2 tablespoons drippings. Crumble bacon and set aside.
2. Heat the reserved drippings in skillet. Add onion and green pepper and cook them about 5 min., stirring occasionally.
3. Turn beans into a 1½ qt. heat-resistant casserole. Mix in onion, green pepper, bacon, molasses, Worcestershire sauce, and a mixture of seasonings.
4. Cover and set on top of grill and allow to cook until thoroughly heated.

About 6 servings

Vegetables in Foil Packets for Grilling

Choose contrasting vegetables—fresh, frozen, or canned—for the packet mixtures. Accentuate natural flavors with Accent, salt, seasoned pepper, and exotic spices and herbs. Let your imagination and your personal taste be your guide.

Mixed Bean Packet. Partially thaw 1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen cut green beans, 1 pkg. (9 oz.) cut wax beans and 1 pkg. (10 oz.) lima beans; lightly toss with 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, ¼ teaspoon ground mace, ¼ cup chopped onion, and ¼ cup butter or margarine. Wrap, seal, and grill.

Zucchini Packet. Combine 6 small zucchini, sliced, 1 onion, sliced, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1 beef bouillon cube, crushed, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, ¼ teaspoon crushed fennel seed, and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine; toss lightly to mix. Wrap and seal as for a large packet; grill.

Individual Packets

Cut 8- to 12-in. squares of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Put equal amounts of any or a suggested vegetable mixture onto each square. Wrap loosely and seal securely using a drugstore fold. Turning packets, grill 15 to 20 min. or until vegetables are tender.

Large Packets

Using 18-in. squares of foil, wrap, seal, and grill vegetables as for Individual Packets, allowing 20 to 35 min. for grilling.

It's time to serve Spicy Chicken from the grill, assorted relishes, mandarin orange-avocado salad, and sesame seed bread.

new patented golf course sprinkler available to the public for the first time—

LETS YOU DIAL ANY SPRAY PATTERN YOU NEED FOR YOUR SHAPE AND SIZE LAWN!

Covers up to 5,000 sq. ft. Gives you the precision watering and total coverage of an underground system without the cost. Keeps your lawn lush green all through summer dry spells.

U.S. Patent No. 302212

This remarkable new "WARBLER" made by "Rain Bird" America's leading manufacturer of professional sprinkler equipment is the same type of sprinkler used at famous golf courses like the Rainier Country Club, Seattle, Washington, Thunderbird Golf Course, Palm Springs, Cal., Belverde Country Club, Hot Springs, Ark. — and dozens of others.

Anti-rust, cast aluminum construction—wide no-tip zinc base for steady spray—unique side-splash shield keeps the spray in front—brass connections—nylon control knobs—built for years of trouble-free performance.

$9.95 on 30-day trial

Waters your whole lawn with just a twist of your wrist.

Keeps grass roots "deep-watered" so your lawn can't brown out.

Pays for itself in what it saves you on seed, fertilizer, etc.

Assures scientific watering that can double and triple germination during fall re-seeding time.

Now you can dial yourself a lush, green golf course lawn.

Now you can water your lawn with the same type of professional equipment favored by most greenskeepers and landscapers. Now you can give your lawn the precise, scientific watering that's the secret of a beautiful lawn.

And it's so easy. This new "WARBLER" takes the hard work out of watering. With a twist of your fingers, you can dial any spray pattern you need for your lawn—spread water over any distance from 20 to 40 feet—and from 40 to 80 feet in diameter. Most important, you can actually control the width of the spray—dial any pattern from the smallest part of a circle to a full 360 degrees. So you put the water where you want it without wasting it on walks and patios—without flooding some spots and leaving others dry and arid.

Unique impulse action spreads your water up to 2 and 3 times as far—even with low water pressure!

The "WARBLER'S" powerful impulse action actually sprays water up to three times as far as ordinary sprinklers. Covers a giant 5,000 sq. ft. and more. So you don't have to keep moving sprinklers to water your whole lawn. Even on windy days, a twist of the dial gives you a low, wind defying jet stream that reaches where you want.

The "WARBLER'S" specially designed nozzle produces a fine uniform droplet spray that reaches every inch of your lawn, every blade of your grass. And this fine spray seeps down to nourish grass roots—never floods and runs-off in rivers of wasted water.

This scientific, precise watering lets you enjoy a beautiful lawn with far less work and effort than ever before. Professional, consistent watering makes your grass roots strong and vigorous so they spread out underground to cover far and wide—actually force out crab grasses and other weeds that thrive in dry, arid spots. This means less weeding and spraying for you. In fact, the "WARBLER" will pay for itself the first season in what it saves you on chemical sprays, seeds and fertilizer—because now less will go further and do better.

FREE SPRINKLER AND HOSE "SHUT-OFF" VALVE IF YOUR ORDER IS MAILED WITHIN 10 DAYS. This "RAIN BIRD" Shut-off valve screws right into any sprinkler or hose. It allows you to shut off—or turn on—the water right at the sprinkler instead of walking all the way back to your faucet. And it's yours Free—to keep even if you decide to return the "Warbler".

The "WARBLER" can help end your lawn problems—make it easy to have a lush, green golf course lawn you'll always be proud of—and save you endless hours of drudgery moving sprinklers and dragging hoses around. And now this professional type sprinkler is yours for the remarkably low price of only $9.95 on a 30 day home trial basis.

So order the "WARBLER" today and dial a rich, green lawn. If it doesn't give you precise, scientific watering—if it doesn't outwater any sprinkler you've ever tried—Yes, if it isn't the closest thing you can get to an underground system without the cost of installation—just return it anytime within 30 days for a complete refund.

The "WARBLER" is backed by a one year warranty from "RAIN BIRD", America's leading maker of professional sprinklers. But this is the first season it's been offered to the public and supplies are very limited—SO ORDER, TODAY.

Home and Garden Supply, Dept. FG
8 Bayberry Ridge, Westport, Conn. 06880

Please send me the new professional "Warbler" Sprinkler on your unconditional 30-day money back guarantee of satisfaction. The "Warbler" comes with complete, simple instructions—and a scientific watering guide and chart. I also receive the "RAIN BIRD" Shut-off Valve Free with every Sprinkler order—mine to keep as a gift even if I return the Sprinkler.

I enclose full payment in check or money order.

1 "Rain Bird" "WARBLER" professional Sprinkler—covers up to 5,000 sq. ft. just $9.95 plus $1 pstge and hdlg. ($10.95 total)
2 "Rain Bird" "WARBLER" professional Sprinklers just $18.95 plus $1.50 pstge ($20.45 total)

How To Collect Up To $10,000 In Extended Benefits On Top Of Your Present Hospital Insurance

Now! Whether you are in the hospital or not, Americare® Major Medical Plan pays 80% of all eligible health care expenses over the deductible amount for which you qualify... pays as much as $10,000 in tax-free cash for doctor, hospital and other bills...even helps pay many "extended care" costs that regular hospital insurance may not cover at all.

Shut your eyes for a moment, and imagine yourself in this kind of catastrophic situation:

Yesterday you were well and happy, with no thought of an impending accident. Or, perhaps last week you felt some tiny twinge, yet did not connect it with coming health trouble.

Now suddenly you are in a hospital bed. Flat on your back. Perhaps being prepared for surgery. Perhaps under intensive care in a recovery room.

Your first thought, naturally, is: Will I be all right? Will I get well?

And next: How much is all this going to cost me? WILL MY HOSPITAL INSURANCE BE ENOUGH?

If you are faced with a long period of costly treatment and convalescence—and have only "regular" hospital insurance—the answer has to be NO.

That's because regular hospital insurance, the kind most families have, was designed to help pay for shorter hospital confinements. And as great a blessing as these plans are, most simply were not designed to provide for really long-term hospitalization, or the kind of extended care at home that usually goes with "catastrophic" illnesses or serious-injury accidents.

It is this long-term need—with expenses that can run into thousands of dollars—which American Republic's special Americare® Major Medical Plan was designed to fill. In simple terms, the Americare® Major Medical Plan starts where regular hospital insurance usually stops.

Yet its cost, for qualified persons or families, is remarkably low—indeed, often LOWER than some forms of ordinary hospital insurance.

Excepting only the usual exclusions—and after the deductible amount for which you qualify—your Americare® Major Medical Plan PAYS 80% OF ELIGIBLE EXPENSES UP TO $10,000—for each separate accident or illness.

Eligible expenses covered under this Americare® Major Medical Plan include:

- Hospital room, board and general nursing care—up to $36 per day (80% of $45).
- Medical or surgical diagnosis or treatment by a doctor, in or out of hospital.
- Anesthetics, and anesthetic administration.
- Drugs and medicines requiring doctor's prescription.
- Private duty nursing by a registered graduate nurse, when prescribed by a doctor.
- X-ray services and diagnostic laboratory procedures.
- Artificial limbs or eyes, casts, splints, trusses, braces, or crutches.
- Oxygen and equipment for its administration.
- Rental of a wheel chair, or hospital-type bed, for use at home.
- Professional ambulance service to or from local hospital.

You are covered for eligible expenses which result from any accident after the date your policy is issued, and as a result of any sickness that is first manifested more than 30 days from date of issue and which begins while the policy is in force. Unless, of course, such expenses result from war, mental disorder, attempted self-destruction, maternity, dental work, except as required because of injury to sound natural teeth, injury or sickness for which benefits are payable under any workmen's compensation, occupational disease or similar law; birth irregularities or cosmetic surgery unless occasioned by injury; eye refractions, eye glasses or the fitting thereof; hearing aids or the fitting thereof, or when services, supplies, or treatments are provided by or are covered under any federal, state or other governmental plan or law.

SPECIAL OFFER TO SENIOR CITIZENS:

Americare® has a special protection service designed exclusively for you. It is a low-cost plan that can pay you hundreds of dollars in addition to Medicare or other coverage. Guaranteed renewable for life. For free folder, check box on reply card.

Pearls Are in Again!

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

Dazzle him with cabochon pearl earrings and pin, set with rhinestones and simulated jade. Marcel Boucher.

REMEMBER when a string of pearls and a basic black dress were all a woman needed to look chic? Along came that French upstart Courreges who changed all that. He ushered in a whole "era" of mini-skirted, strictly constructed clothes—and suddenly any pearl bauble looked out of place.

What's happened to put the oyster back in business? Feminine, flowing clothes, not as abbreviated, that's what —and even signs that black is back, yearning for adornment.

"Jewelry designers," reports the Jewelry Industry Council, "quick to sense a change in fashion direction, have ensconced pearls in a host of imaginative settings this season." Those pictured here, FAMILY WEEKLY predicts, are especially destined for star billing along with today's fashions. ◆

Did Cliff Robertson

Some Hollywood critics have questioned his award for "Charly"; here are the facts about the movie and the man himself— you decide the answer

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

WE'D HARDLY settled in the Beverly Hills Hotel for lunch, when the waiter scurried to our table and beamed, "Congratulations, Mr. Robertson! You deserved to win the Oscar!"

Cliff Robertson appeared surprised at the ready recognition. "Why, thank you," he said. "Thank you very much!"

Turning to me, he said, "I can remember a time, not too long ago, when no one would have known my name, let alone congratulate me. And that's the nicest word he could have used—'deserved.'"

But was it "deserved"? Or did Robertson "buy" the 1968 Academy Award through paid advertising and promotion, as Time magazine has implied.

When I asked him outright about the article, Cliff said vehemently, "I personally didn't put one red cent into advertising. I feel sorry for the writer of that piece. He obviously didn't do his homework. I don't think he expected me to win. When I did, he found himself without a gimmick. The only angle he could come up with was the usual attack on the Academy."

There was paid publicity, Cliff admitted, but he pointed out that every nominee advertised. Most were backed financially by wealthy studios. Cliff's film, "Charly," had only a shoestring budget.

Since a nationwide publicity campaign was financially impossible, "Charly's" producers used the Hollywood trade papers, supported by a full-page ad in the Los Angeles Times, and a sign board. "They spent a lot less than the other studios," Cliff grinned, "but I guess the double-page gatefold in Daily Variety made the greatest impact."

Ironically, Robertson was deep in the Philippines on location making "Too Late the Hero," when the golden statue was being awarded. Frank Sinatra received the Oscar in his behalf.

"We were in the jungle 70 miles from Manila," Cliff recalled. "The Hollywood news was cabled to a Manila hotel, then passed on to us via shortwave radio.

"I was very, very touched by the responses from those who shared those first moments with me," Cliff reminisced. "Actors, crewmen, just everybody." That evening while a celebration was going on, he called his actress-wife Dina Merrill, anxious to know what Sinatra had said when he accepted the award.

But Cliff learned that when his name was announced, Dina buried her head in her niece's lap and laughed and cried, all at the same time, missing the whole acceptance speech. His ten-year-old daughter's tears were so voluminous when she heard the news that she, too, missed Sinatra's words. But it was she, when he

"Win" His Oscar?

Actress-wife Dina Merrill was emotion-choked at Oscar presentation.

phoned her in Florida, who asked "How long did it take to make 'Charly'?"

"Seven years," Cliff had answered. "Seven long years!"

"That is a long time, Daddy!" she exclaimed.

Cliff learned that Sinatra had asked to accept the Oscar for him because he had known right along what a long struggle it had been for him. "But I still don't know what Frank said," laughed Cliff. "I forgot to ask him."

No one can agree more with Sinatra that Cliff's entire career has been a tough climb uphill than Cliff himself. "I feel like I've just come out of a dark tunnel," he exclaimed.

"Till 'Charly,' I was always more proud of my tv roles," Cliff admitted. But he also rejected the idea that awarding him an Oscar was a sentimental gesture of the Academy voters who, each time, had seen his highly acclaimed tv roles go to other actors when they were made into movies.

"There was a lot said about that," Cliff continued, "but I do honestly feel that it was the picture itself that did it!"

When I commented about the poor caliber of the films he had done through those tumultuous seven years, Cliff sarcastically said, "You should have seen the ones I turned down!"

I didn't have to pin Cliff down to tell me what prompted him to want to be "Charly," the 34-year-old retarded janitor who becomes a genius with tragic consequences.

Cliff stared into the distance. "I was obsessed with the thought that someone else might get the role," he said. "Then suddenly I knew I couldn't sit back and be a stand-in this time. I was going to do it, no matter what!"

The next morning he called his agent and said, "I don't care how crazy you think I am, buy that property for me! I am going to be 'Charly!' "

Except for the lead in "PT-109," for which President Kennedy himself chose Cliff to portray him, life has never been easy.

After Cliff's mother died of a ruptured appendix, his father took off and was seen only rarely afterward. Cliff grew up with a grandmother in La Jolla. He did everything from mowing lawns to preserving appendixes in a hospital where his grandmother was a nurse. After high school, he joined the merchant marine.

Hollywood rumors claim that Cliff now intends to ask $1 million a picture. He scoffed at this. "Good Lord! I've never measured anything by money! If somebody comes to me with a script, I'll read it for any price. I didn't take any salary for 'Charly'—just a percentage—and I'd do it again!"

The greatest payoff, according to Cliff, for winning an Oscar is that now film makers will take his acting ability seriously. "Now they value my opinion," he said. "They not only hand me the meatiest scripts, but if I don't like one —they ask me why."

When I asked Cliff what the future held for him, he said, "I'm writing two scripts of my own and, of course, I am reading a lot of them. The number of films I do doesn't matter, but each must have the mark of quality on it—that's my burning wish!"

It doesn't sound like a man who would "buy" an Oscar. But it does sound like a man who would battle seven years to play a role he believes in—Oscar or no Oscar. ◆

A nickel's worth of Sno-Bol sanitizes, deodorizes and removes rust stains from your you-know-what.

General purpose cleaners are fine for most jobs. But not for cleaning toilet bowls. They don't deodorize, sanitize, and remove rust stains like Sno-Bol.

Liquid Sno-Bol cleans in seconds while it deodorizes and sanitizes. It's faster and more efficient than any dry bowl cleaner. You can pour Sno-Bol full strength to remove rust stains and calcium deposits. And it works better and costs less than other leading bowl cleaners.

Today's Top Music... Tomorrow's Tender Memories!

All yours in this 6-RECORD STEREO SET!

All the Songs That Sing Today's Sound of Love

YOURS TO ENJOY FREE FOR 10 DAYS!

and if you decide to keep it, its yours for only $5.00 A MONTH

THEY'RE not writing love songs like they used to. They're writing them better! Great songs like "Going Out Of My Head," "The Look Of Love," "L. David Sloane," and "Can't Take My Eyes Off You"—dreamy, beautiful ballads like "MacArthur Park," "Honey," "There's A Kind Of Hush," and "Turn Around, Look At Me"—memorable tunes from movie sound tracks like "To Sir, With Love," "Mrs. Robinson," and "People."

These are the songs to remember always! 5, 10, even 20 years from now, they will live as classics of their kind—be remembered fondly as the songs sung and dreamed over by today's "with it" generation. That's why Columbia has put them all together in one of the most exciting collections of popular music ever recorded! It's the only record collection of its kind—the only set with all the "now" hits of today. And that's why it belongs in your family's personal musical-memories album to treasure forever!

The title of the set is The Look of Love—and it's the lushest, most romantic record set you've ever heard. All the top pop composers are here—John Lennon, Paul McCartney, Burt Bacharach, Paul Simon, Jimmy Webb, Hal David, Jerry Herman and many more. All the best songs, too—"Those Were The Days," "Up, Up And Away," "By The Time I Get To Phoenix," "Love Is Blue," "Hey Jude," "This Guy's In Love With You," "Harper Valley PTA" and scores more. That's right... there are 80 beautiful songs in all... recorded in the music centers of the world—Paris, London, New York and Nashville—by the finest musical talents of two continents.

And the sound is as sumptuous as you'd expect from any Columbia Musical Treasuries' collection. Recorded in Columbia's exclusive "Dynamic Dimension Stereo," all 12 sides of this great set give you "full-sound spectrum"—all the highs and all the lows in perfect stereo fidelity.

To audition The Look of Love in your home FREE for 10 days, just fill in and mail the coupon. When this swinging, 6-record set arrives, put it on your phonograph and sit down and relax—if you can. Or let the music get under your skin... go with it... get up and dance. Then, if you can bear to part with this magnificent song treasury of the sixties, just return it to us—you'll owe absolutely nothing.

On the other hand, if you decide to keep it, The Look of Love is yours for only $14.95 (plus postage and handling)—all of which you may pay in 4 convenient monthly installments. So act today!

QUIPS AND QUOTES

An egotistical man was having difficulty with just about everyone he came into contact. After a long while, his wife persuaded him to see a psychiatrist.

After his first visit, the man came home in a rage. "That head-shrinker is trying to give me an inferiority complex!" he told his wife.

"What makes you think that?" she asked.

"He told me nobody's perfect!"

A tall, bronzed six-footer flew into a violent rage in a hotel lobby one night because, for one reason or another, all the elevators were delayed on the upper floors.

Finally one descended, operated by a wisp of a girl. The six-footer stamped inside and bellowed, "Where the devil have you been? Do you realize I have to get packed for a mountain-climbing expedition tomorrow? Second floor—and make it snappy."

—Dorothea Kent

Perhaps no hardship was so difficult for Adam and Eve to bear as their inability to blame the state of the world on an older generation. —Franklin P. Jones

Little Lenny had been going to kindergarten for several weeks. He was walking along the street one day with his mother when they passed another small boy. Lenny greeted him with "Hi, Paul." As they continued along, Mother asked Lenny what the other boy's last name was.

"It's Paul Sitdown," replied Lenny. "At least, that's what the teacher calls him."

when you join Doubleday's Bargain Book Club and agree to take only a book a month for only a year out of a wide selection — at low Club prices.

Accept this big get-acquainted offer from Doubleday's Bargain Book Club. Never has there been a more opportune time for you to become a member.

- Select any 6 of 60 books on this page for only 99 cents. Choose from best-selling novels, illustrated books, big reference volumes, even two-volume sets — all full-length, all in hardcovers! This is your introductory package when you join the Club.
- Thereafter, as a member, you will be offered each month a variety of book bargains from which to choose. Selections are exciting new adult novels chosen from the lists of leading publishers. They cost $4.95 to $5.95 each in publishers' editions, yet they come to members for as little as $1.69. Big hits by Thomas B. Costain, Daphne du Maurier, Frank Yerby and other top authors have come to members at a saving of up to 70%. Some extra-value books are offered to members at prices somewhat higher than $1.69.
- Alternate selections include books of every kind — cook books, mysteries, travel books, classics, homemaking books — at special prices to members only. An attractive bonus plan offers other big savings, too. All books are new, full-length, hard-bound editions.
- SEND NO MONEY NOW — JUST MAIL THE ATTACHED COUPON. Circle code numbers of the 6 introductory books of your choice. You will receive these 6 books at once, and you will be billed only 99 cents, plus shipping and handling. Mail the attached coupon now. Doubleday Bargain Book Club, Garden City, New York 11530.

"WE ANCHORED ONE DAY ALONGSIDE A COMMERCIAL WHARF PACKED WITH RUSTY MACHINERY, WHICH INTRIGUED DAVE WITH ITS POTENTIAL".

I'LL HAVE TO CHECK GENERAL DELIVERY AT THE POST OFFICE, JANE. LET'S GET GOING!

ERIK, KEEP AN EYE ON YOUR BROTHER-- WE'LL BE BACK SOON!

IF THERE ISN'T A CHECK WAITING, WE'LL HAVE TO POSTPONE GOING SOUTH!

IT'S HAPPENED BEFORE--NO MONEY, I MEAN. BUT WE HAVEN'T STARVED!

HEY, ERIK! LET'S LOOK AT THAT STUFF UNDER THE TENTS!

IT'S BEGINNING TO RAIN. HOW FAR ARE WE FROM THE CAMP WHERE WE RENTED THE BOAT?

ABOUT SEVEN MILES!

HOW LONG WILL IT TAKE US TO GET BACK?

ONCE WE GET THAT LITTLE OLD MOTOR STARTED WE'LL BE THERE IN A JIFFY!

I'D BETTER FILL THE TANK BEFORE WE LEAVE.

DID WE BRING SOME OARS, JUST IN CASE?

WHEN YOU HAVE AN OUTBOARD MOTOR, WHO NEEDS OARS?

BEFORE WE LEAVE, I'D BETTER POUR WATER ON THE CAMPFIRE!

YIPES! THIS CAN HAS OUTBOARD FUEL IN IT!

Quick Car Trim

OLD-FASHION cars in gay colors make a bright trim for the boy's items. Simply press on, no embroidery needed! Pattern No. 2128 has color transfer for 16 motifs of various sizes.

DEAR POLLY—My lovely white tablecloth with several stains on it was made usable again by painting over the stained area in simple but attractive designs with a paint for such purposes which comes in many lovely hues. I did clusters of flowers and was pleased with the result.—EULAVIE

DEAR POLLY—Want a squirrel-proof bird feeder? Suspend it from a wire hung between two trees or a tree and the house. Thread a 33⅓ phonograph record on each end of the wire about two or three feet from each tree. A large knot tied in the wire on each side of the records will hold them in place. This keeps even the craftiest squirrel away from the feeder.—BILL

DEAR POLLY—When the light bulb burned out in my sewing machine, I replaced it with a Christmas tree bulb. I scraped the colored paint off so it gives a brighter light.—CORINNE

Polly's note: They do not fit all machines but are great when they do.

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—I used an old pole lamp for a shower curtain rod. The wiring and sockets were removed. It just fits across the five-foot span from wall to wall after the one section with no spring was removed. The strong spring holds it up on the walls. This looks nice with our new shower curtain hanging from it.—MARGARET

DEAR POLLY—Roll linen or damask tablecloths on old window shade rollers to prevent wear from folds and so it will lie flat when put on the table.—GERTRUDE

DEAR POLLY—When traveling I pack a square of heavy cardboard and a small bag of balloons and leave my bulky wig block and case at home. When I take off my wig at night I blow up a balloon to the head size of my wig, tie a knot in the balloon and slip it through a slit cut in the cardboard. This holds my wig nicely.—NANCY

DEAR POLLY—Clip some of those interesting magazine articles you never have time to read and tape them to the breakfast cereal box. This certainly makes more interesting reading than "Hey, kids, get one free."—MRS. E. I. R.

DEAR POLLY—To remove rust from the corners of cake tins that have not been in use for a long time I dip a piece of raw potato in cleaning powder and then scour.—P. L. L.
